ANTI-MECHANIZED WAR

THE story of the new warfare—the coordination of aviation and mechanized forces in assault operations—has been many times told. As with every development in warfare, a defense against this type of assault eventually must be found. That Britain did not solve the problem after the debacle of France was indicated in the further reverses in Greece when the Nazis again employed tanks and dive bombers en masse.

One thing which does appear to be evident is that the tank attack is not to be stopped by ordinary artillery. Tanks move too fast. Heavy guns cannot be maneuvered quickly enough to be brought to bear in sufficient numbers observers believe. Light guns also often cannot be massed at the right places at the right time, and even when so massed lack the power to "knock out" enough tanks to break up an attack of the 500 armored vehicles of a panzer division.

Reliable sources state that German tank strategy envisioned the possibility of as high as 50 per cent losses in the penetration of the first ten miles of defenses—but envisioned also the great striking power which would remain to the reorganized forces of even 250 tanks once the main defenses had been passed.

The sixty 37-mm antitank guns and eight 75-mm antitank guns of the triangular division probably, in the opinion of many, could not destroy an armored division in the approximately five minutes which would elapse between appearance of the tanks within effective range and their arrival at the guns. Tanks, it must be remembered, move from 200 to 400 yards a minute travelling across country.

It is not at all sure that the remedy lies in increasing the number of antitank guns, either within the division or in higher echelons—the corps or army.

One important factor must not be lost sight of. Every German tank assault was preceded by air attacks. It is safe to say that no force can take the offensive in modern war, with tanks or otherwise, without at least temporary local air superiority. This air superiority means:

First, the defending forces will be handicapped in learning the strength and disposition of the attacking forces. They are liable to learn of a tank attack only when the armored vehicles appear over some crest or out of some thicket only a few thousand yards away. This does not allow time to mass guns, even if the defenders have them in reserve. It does not allow guns to be placed strategically to meet the actual attacks, nor perhaps even allow time to install passive antitank defenses.

Second, the defender's gun emplacements will be subjected to intensive aerial bombing and machine gunning up to the time the attacking tanks are upon them. This is certain to put many guns out of commission and to impede operation of the remainder.

There remains to the Army at present

Pay of Rank Voted for Navy; Urged for Army

Action of the House of Representatives in accepting an amendment to the Navy temporary promotion bill, H. R. 4473, providing for pay-of-grade for all officers temporarily promoted is encouraging sponsors of similar legislation for the Army. Representative Overton Brooks, La., author of the bill H. R. 4779, the Army pay-of-grade bill, told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week that "we will put it through if it is the last thing I do in Congress."

The Navy provision for pay-of-grade in case of temporary promotion or advancement is embodied in an amendment to the temporary promotion bill which was introduced by Representative Ed. V. Izac, Calif., and accepted by unanimous vote of the House. It reads as follows:

"The provisions of paragraph 9 of section 1 of the act approved 10 June 1922 (42 Stat. 626; U.S.C., title 37, sec. 2), shall be applicable to all officers eligible for appointment or advancement pursuant to the provisions of this act, not only during the existence of a state of war formally recognized by Congress, but also during a national emergency determined by the President."

In support of his amendment Mr. Izac told the House:

"Under the original pay act of 1922, there were six pay periods set up, starting from $1,500 for an ensign of the Navy and going on up to what a captain would receive, $4,000. In this temporary promotion bill that we are endeavoring to pass today we are going to have to freeze these officers in those pay periods unless we alter the provisions of the original act. In other words, we cannot give them an advance of pay with an advance of rank unless we adopt my amendment. We can

Navy Mans Army Transports

Civilian crews on Army transports are being supplanted by Navy and Coast Guard personnel transferred to the Navy. It was disclosed this week. The transports will remain under Army control however, it was stated.

Civilians displaced as crew members are being encouraged to enlist in the Navy or the Naval Reserve and in many cases will retain their former positions on the ship after enlistment. Those who are either unwilling or unable to enlist will be replaced.

New Non-Branch Group of Army Officers Asked

Legislative authority to make temporary appointments of officers in the Army of the United States thereby creating, in effect, a group of officers totally separate from arms and services, was asked of Congress this week by the War Department.

The law proposed by the War Department would give authority to the President to make such temporary appointments without regard to lack of military experience in the Regular Army, the National Guard, or the Officers' Reserve Corps. Appointments of general officers would require the advice and consent of the Senate but all other appointments would be made by the President alone.

In a letter to the Speaker of the House of Representatives inclosing a draft of the proposed measure, Secretary of War Stimson wrote that the legislation is required because "we must carry on with the organizational and expansion problems incident to total national preparedness to meet any situation that might be suddenly thrust upon us. To do less than this would invite disaster."

Navy Temporary Rank
Bill Passed By House

The House of Representatives on Tuesday passed the bill H. R. 4473 providing temporary promotions in the Navy and Marine Corps, amending it to provide that all officers temporarily advanced during war or national emergency shall receive the pay of the higher grade. Also included in the bill is an amendment presented by Representative J. William Ditter, Pa., providing that no temporary promotions shall be made in any staff corps of the Navy until the authorized number of permanent officers in each grade or rank has been filled.

The bill as enacted by the House includes all of the committee amendments that were described in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL on 24 and 31 May. Neither the bill nor any of the amendments encountered any opposition on the floor of the House and the measure was adopted unanimously. Anticipated opposition to the pay amendment, which was sponsored by Representative Izac, Calif., failed to materialize after Chairman Carl W. Vinson of the Naval Affairs Committee told the House he had been informed by the Bureau of Navigation that it has no objection to the proposal.

Mr. Ditter offered his amendment after urging that the selection system apply to the temporary promotions instead of leaving the matter to the discretion of the President as provided in the bill. The amendment he finally offered, however, and which was adopted by the House is being interpreted unofficially in Navy Department circles as having no material effect on the manner of promotions. His amendment reads:

"Provided, That no temporary promotion shall be made in any staff corps of the Navy until the authorized number of permanent officers in each grade or rank has been filled."

It has been pointed out that there is no authorized number of permanent staff officers in any rank except that of rear admiral. And consequently it would be impossible to comply with the provisions of the amendment. Mr. Ditter explained his amendment as follows:

"The purpose of the amendment is this: If there are 20 lieutenant grade officers and there are 10 billets in the lieutenant-commander group to be filled, it seems to me that instead of using the temporary promotion scheme the present bill provides for, that the promotion of those 10 men from the lieutenant group that are presently in the group and ready to be promoted to the lieutenant-commander group should be resorted to first before there is any resort to this temporary promotion scheme."

In response to the explanation Mr. Vinson said: "I think the suggestion of the gentleman is indeed a very constructive one and I am grateful for calling it to the committee's attention. I am willing to accept the amendment."

Representative William P. Cole, N. Y., one of the minority members of the Naval Affairs Committee, expressed some doubt about the wisdom of using selection in temporary promotions, saying:

"The important thing about this bill, to my mind, is the temporary nature of these promotions. These are not permanent promotions. A man might be eligible for a promotion temporarily and not, in the opinion of a

Press Ponders New Civilian Defense Agency; Sees Much Work Ahead

The nation's press turned this week to consider the new Office of Civilian Defense created by President Roosevelt for the purpose of uniting the peoples of the United States into a common front to bulwark the national defense program. Many editorials have appeared in the nation's leading newspapers dealing with the new office and the naming of Fiorello LaGuardia, Mayor of New York City as its chief.

The Call, of Woonsocket, R. I., says, "The Civilian Defense Agency will touch almost every human activity. Its influence will be felt in the fields of food, health, education, fire protection, home and office building construction, agriculture and industry. It is expected to produce exhibits of model shelters, model wartime fire engines, and homes built for safety against bombs. It is intended to sample us with blackouts and with practical evacuations, and to teach us through lectures from abroad." The Chronicle adds, "In this war of aerial bombs, parachute troops, gliders and surprise invasions, civilian organization has become a matter of equal importance with the organization of the actual military arm of every country." The Times, Baton Rouge, La., states, "As we understand the purpose of this new office, it is intended to bring virtually the entire population into defense service. This does not mean that all will carry guns and fight fires and do sentry duty. Our farms and gardens are an important line of defense. Some will serve the best by continuing to do their daily tasks, in shop or office or home. But this planning does bespeak a consciousness of the times and the value of system, and of knowing what is expected of one under certain circumstances. And certainly, this bringing all into the sphere of service will in itself deepen the sense of individual responsibility."

The Courier, of Camden, N. J., declares, "It is not yet quite clear what this post means," commenting on the appointment of Mayor LaGuardia as director of the Office of Civilian Defense. "But," The Courier says, "It is clear that LaGuardia is Mayor of New York, probably the third most important job in the United States; that he is also a chairman of the American section of the Joint-Permanent Defense Board to plan co-operation with Canada, that he is president of the United States Conference of Mayors." The Courier concludes with, "We hope the amazing LaGuardia proves equal to handling his four important jobs. But we doubt if any man could." The Charleston, W. Va., Mail declares, "The new Office of Civilian Defense, created by President Roosevelt does not for the present loom large as a factor in the actual physical defense of this country against an invasion. It is however, none the less important to a nation occupied in preparedness, and it may well play a vital part in speeding that program." The Mail concludes, "Appointment of New York's Mayor LaGuardia to head the program gets it off to a good start."

The Evening Bulletin, of Providence, R. I., states, "The importance of the Civilian Defense Program established yesterday by President Roosevelt cannot be overemphasized. War is no longer confined to the field of battle. The airplane has brought it right into the homes and factories of civilian life. The use of parachute troops and of gliders as ferries for soldiers has made civilian alertness compulsory. The exploitation of treachery within a country under attack or subject to attack puts the civilian under the same obligation to be watchful that the soldier has." The Evening Bulletin continues, "This is the opportunity for millions of Americans to serve in useful and patriotic works. There will be tasks for every sort of talent, and there will be a purposefulness about the work which will stimulate morale and intensify unity."

The Spokesman-Review, of Spokane, Wash., states "In war today the battle front extends across the entire territory of the countries involved. Essential to any program of preparedness, therefore, is the organization of civilian defense. This phase of preparation for war has been discussed for several months and now is to be undertaken by a newly created agency headed by Mayor LaGuardia of New York. The program as it is set in motion and spreads to every important community in the country under the forceful direction of LaGuardia, is apt to prove more effective than all the declamatory efforts of administration officials in awakening the nation to the important and the possible imminence of total war."

He also said such appointments would avoid "overextending the commissioned personnel of the Regular Army, the National Guard, and the Officers' Reserve Corps."

From Mr. Stimson's letter it is obvious that the bill would permit the commissioning of various types of specialists, such as those now in the OPM, who under strict interpretation of qualifications would not fit into any specific branch of the Army.

There is also speculation that the Department's decision to commission such officers in the "Army of the United States" without being specifically commissioned in an arm or service, may be a move in the direction of eventual abolition of branch affiliations in other components of the Army, although there is admittedly a great deal of opposition. Representative Ross Collins, of Meridian Miss., member of the House Appropriations committee, who has shown a considerable interest in the abolition of branches, stated this week that he believes some progress is being made in that direction. He said that the Japanese government, within the past week or so, has abolished branches in its Army.

Secretary Stimson's letter on this week's proposal follows:

"There is inclosed herewith draft of a joint resolution 'To authorize temporary appointments of officers in the Army of the United States' which the War Department recommends be enacted into law."

"The purpose of the proposed legislation is to provide authority, during the present emergency, for temporary appointments of officers in the Army of the United States, as distinguished from appointments in the individual components."

"Sound personnel policy dictates that the officer personnel of the Regular Army, the National Guard, and the Officers' Reserve Corps be considered at all times as separate continuing bodies of officers and that each be maintained at a permanent strength limited to the Army's need and normal capacity to adequately train during normal times of peace so that in an emergency there shall be a sufficiently large and well trained body of officers to meet the initial officer requirements of mobilization. Such policy should also contemplate an expansion of the composite group of officers during time of war or national emergency and provide for a planned return to normalcy after such war or national emergency has terminated."

"Federal statutes in effect in time of peace have enabled the War Department to carry out the above policy insofar as concerns the building up of a body of officers to meet the initial requirements of an emergency and other statutes applicable only in time of war would enable the War Department to expand this composite group of officers to meet the total defense needs of the nation. There is no authority, however, to meet the situation confronting the nation today for though we are at peace, we must carry on with the organizational and expansion problems incident to total national preparedness to meet any situation that might be suddenly thrust upon us. To do less than this would invite disaster."

"The enactment of this proposed legislation will enable the War Department to temporarily appoint as officers, in the Army of the United States, certain specialists whose services are highly desired in connection with particular projects during the present emergency, but whose military knowledge and general qualifications would not justify their retention in a component of the Army of the United States after the emergency has terminated. It will also enable the War Department to build up, during the emergency, the large corps of officers necessary to properly officer our National Defense forces should the country become involved in war, and to do this without overextending the commissioned personnel of the Regular Army, the National Guard, and the Officers' Reserve Corps."

"Since the proposed legislation is in the nature of method of appointment rather than an authorization for a greater number of appointments, its enactment into law would not cause additional cost to the government."

Text of Measure

Following is the text of the proposed Joint Resolution:

"Be it enacted, etc., That during the present emergency, temporary appointments as officers in the Army of the United States may be made under such regulations as the President may prescribe from among qualified persons without appointing such persons as officers in any particular component of the Army of the United States. All persons so appointed as officers shall be commissioned in the Army of the United States and may be ordered into the active military service of the United States to serve therein for such periods of time as the President may prescribe. Such appointments in grades below that of brigadier general shall be made by the President alone, and general officers by and with the advice and consent of the Senate: Provided, That any appointment made under the provisions of this Act may be vacated at any time by the President and, if not sooner vacated, shall continue during the present emergency and six months thereafter: Provided further, That any person appointed as an officer in the Army of the United States under the provisions of this Act shall receive the same pay and allowances and be entitled to the same rights, privileges, and benefits as members of the Officers' Reserve Corps of the same grade and length of active service; And provided further, that nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to prohibit the appointment of officers in the various components of the Army of the United States in accordance with existing laws."

The Defense Program

only one other means of tank defense—and the limitations of passive tank defenses (mines, barriers, etc.) are well known. Such defenses may "knock out" tanks, may force tanks to deploy. They do not stop the attack of armored divisions.

The best defense against the tank is believed to be something which can fight the tank at its own game. It must have hitting power. It must have mobility to enable it to retreat before the tank, choose its own ground or deploy.

The best defense against the tank, in the opinion of many, is the tank. Thus can the attack of the tank be met—provided the defending tanks are equal or superior in numbers to the attackers.

Discussing means of defense against tank attacks, Maj. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, commander of the Armored Force, told Congress recently: "Former defensive methods cannot be successfully used against these armored operations. Defense against such operations can be made only by armored units of equal or superior power."

The tank destroyer may be the answer to the menace of the tank. High Army officials have admitted that such a vehicle is under study. Secretary of War Stimson himself, in a recent press conference devoted almost entirely to a discussion of aerial and mechanized warfare, intimated that the Army might have some surprises up its sleeve. This month the Field Artillery Journal reprinted photographs of self-propelled gun mounts which were taken during test made 20 years ago. Such gun carriers were abandoned by the Army—but the Germans used the principle successfully in their recent campaigns. They now seem to afford a means by which artillery may be kept up with rapidly advancing mechanized and motorized forces, and be kept firing at the same time.

Another possibility would be the use of the little quarter-ton "jeeps" or reconnaissance cars, mounting 37-mm guns. These speedy little cars can be produced in vast quantities. They are distributed among units of all sizes, so that even the division would have a sizeable group available for coordinated use as tank destroyers.

The important characteristic of the tank destroyer must be speed and maneuverability. Thus the towed gun is ruled out as a means of combating tank columns once they have penetrated the fixed lines of offense.

To give speed and maneuverability the self-propelled gun mount should carry only sufficient armor to afford protection against small arms and shell fragments. This curtailment of armor has another advantage in the increase of visibility for the crew as compared with the limited visibility of a tank crew.

The tank destroyer would mount a 37-mm gun, at least. Preferably it would carry a gun powerful enough to pierce four inches of armor at 800 yards, since the 37-mm gun cannot be counted upon to immobilize a tank with one shell.

A vehicle of the type outlined above would cost a tenth as much as a tank and could be built quickly in large quantities. Concentrations of these vehicles could be concealed during the aerial attack preceding a tank attack, and once the enemy tanks had penetrated the passive defense and antitank gun lines, would swarm about the armored attacking tanks, out-running and out-maneuvering them. The enemy's aircraft could support his tanks only at the risk of destroying his own forces.

As the armored division advances more and more of these "tank destroyers" could be called into action from distant points, and the division eventually would be destroyed.

U. S. Submarine Overdue

The Navy Department reported last yesterday that the submarine O-9 was overdue at Portsmouth. The O-9 was on deep-diving trials. The Department said that "serious concern" was felt for the safety of the vessel and her crew.

The following radio from the War Department has been sent to the Commanding General, Fourth Corps Area: "Due to the acute shortage of water for use in generating electric energy in the southern states all possible steps will be taken to conserve the use of electric energy at camps and stations within your corps area."

Army Air Reorganization

In the face of a rising Congressional sentiment for a separate Air Force, word spread around the War Department this week that a study has been completed and is nearing approval looking toward the consolidation of all Army air activities in an autonomous organization. The proposal, it is said, would give the Air Corps a status in the War Department closely akin to that held by the Marine Corps in the Navy Department.

Official confirmation of the new status for the Air Force is lacking, but it is generally understood that the arrangement was worked out between General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, and Mr. Robert A. Lovett, assistant secretary for air. Under the proposal, it is said, the GHQ Air Force activities in the field, the procurement training activities under the Chief of the Air Corps, and the air planning work now performed by the General Staff, would be consolidated in a unified organization under the Assistant Secretary for Air and the Deputy Chief of Staff for air. One point said to be yet undecided is whether or not a separate intelligence section would be set up in the Air Force general staff or whether this function would be performed by the War Department General Staff.

There is some talk of reviving the movement for a separate promotion list for the Air Corps. In view of the fact that this would require special legislation, an alternate movement of employing the advanced rank apt to simulate the result is being rumored.

Senator Patrick McCarran, Nevada Democrat, this week joined the ranks of those advocating an entirely independent air set-up. When talk of the War Department's proposed action became public, Mr. McCarran was quoted as stating that such a compromise would not meet with his approval, that he will hold out for complete independence.

Senator McCarran told the Senate:

"Events in the world abroad, must have convinced us that the nation which controls the air in years to come will be the nation which will control the world. The time has passed when control of the waves was control of the world. Events in Crete, events in Greece, events in France, and events throughout the world generally have demonstrated the fact that the nation having the strongest air force is the strongest nation.

"It seems to me that in the past we have very much neglected that which has been emphasized by events during the past year. With that thought in mind, I have tried to work out a plan which I am submitting to the Senate by a bill which I am about to introduce under which there will be for national defense in America a great and powerful tri-umvirate—a force by land, a force by water, and a force by air. To that end I believe, and I say now after a long study, that there should be established in this country and in this government a secretary of military aviation to have charge of the part of the national defense known as national defense aviation, and under such a secretary sitting at the cabinet table there should be worked out a program so that national defense from the air will have behind it a united force and a united effort.

"I realize that this proposal may not meet with approbation from certain elements of those in charge of the military and naval defense of our nation; but after a study is made I am convinced that eventually this country will come to the realization that the mistakes which have been made in the past should not be continued, and that we should have for national defense a department of national aviation in military affairs separate and distinct from the Navy and the Army to sit at the council table, to advise the President, so that this nation will go forward to lead the world in control of the air."

Introduction of the bill was greeted by Senator David I. Walsh, Mass., chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs, with an expression of satisfaction. Mr. Walsh told the Senate he was not prepared to go as far as Senator McCarran on the subject but he believed the matter should be studied thoroughly. He added:

"I am pleased that the Senator is introducing the bill, because I think this is a subject which, in view of the public interest, should be thoroughly studied. Personally, I have not yet reached the conclusion, as the Senator knows from private conversation with me, that what he proposes is a desirable step to take. I have felt, after conferring with naval experts, that a better national-defense program would result by maintaining the present policy, namely, with each service having its own air corps. However, I think there is so much interest in the question, and so much agitation about it, that it might well be studied.

"It is not a new proposal, and I am sure the naval experts of the government have decided views in opposition to the proposed change."

Both the War and Navy Departments are already on record against a separate air force, having opposed such a move several months ago in a joint report on a bill introduced by Senator Bennett Champ Clark, Dem., Mo., which would have created an independent air arm. Several similar pieces of legislation are now pending in the House.

Senator Robert Reynolds, N. C., chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, said he had not had time to study the bill and was not prepared to express an opinion. He said the question of hearings on the bill would not be considered by the committee until it has disposed of the plant seizure bill on which hearings now are in progress.

The War Situation

At the outbreak of hostilities between Great Britain and Germany in September, 1939, the British Navy consisted of the following completed vessels:

Battleships	12
Battle cruisers	3
Aircraft carriers	7
Cruisers	69
Destroyers	180
Submarines	58
Total	329

In the destroyer type the announced losses total about 50. The additions due to new construction have not been announced but it is a matter of public record that the United States transferred 50 destroyers to Great Britain during 1940. This number about balances the losses. This, of course, does not take into consideration the number of destroyers undergoing repairs due to damage in action. However, the total number of destroyers now actually available for service against the enemy is believed to be greater than it was in 1939, due to additions because of new construction and acquisitions from other countries.

Aircraft have taken a far greater toll of the destroyers than any other type of war craft as may be noted in the following summaries.

There can be no doubt that the loss of so many destroyers seriously handicaps the Royal Navy in providing escorts for convoys approaching the British Isles. Heavy losses must be expected if the exigencies of the military situations require the use of this type of vessel close to shore batteries and shore-based aircraft. The nature of the duties performed by the destroyers in connection with the land operations in the Norwegian Campaign, the evacuations from Dunkirk and Greece and the Battle of Crete is quite different from that for which their military characteristics were designed. Their small tonnage, the very light framing and plating used in their construction and their small anti-aircraft batteries make them exceedingly vulnerable to aircraft, especially aircraft operating from shore bases.

Destroyers, stopped to pick up land forces, present targets which may be compared with those confronting the hunter when he manages to come within range of ducks sitting on a pond.

Nine More Vice Admirals

The Senate Naval Affairs Committee on 17 June reported the bill H. R. 4823 authorizing the appointment as vice admirals of naval officers designated by the President to perform special or unusual duty, or to command a naval unit afloat organized for the purpose of performing a special or unusual mission. The committee amended the measure to provide that no more than nine such vice admirals may hold that rank at any one time. The vice admirals authorized under the bill would be in addition to the seven permitted under existing law.

Navy Retired Allowances

The bill S. 1589 prohibiting payment of money allowance for subsistence and rental to retired officers of the Navy or Marine Corps for any period when they are not employed on active duty has been reported by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee.

Navy Shore Construction

Appropriations aggregating approximately $31,115,000 for Navy shore construction are authorized in the bill H. R. 4839 which was reported by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee this week. The bill was passed by the House on 4 June.

Among the projects the appropriations would finance are:

Fleet operating facilities at Newport, R. I.; replacement of Marine barracks at Norfolk, Va.; extension of ammunition storage facilities at Hingham, Mass.; replacement of Marine barracks at South Charleston, W. Va.; hospital facilities at Key West, Fla.; development of Marine Corps aviation facilities at Neuse River, N. C.; expansion of Marine Corps training facilities at various Marine bases, including Parris Island, S. C., San Diego, Calif., and Quantico, Va., and expansion of facilities at various Naval training stations, including Great Lakes, Ill., Newport, R. I., Norfolk, Va., and San Diego, Calif.

Trainees As Parachutists

The War Department announced this week that trainees will be permitted to volunteer for parachute troop duty following their training period at Infantry Replacement Centers. The first unit to be open to the trainees will be the 502nd Infantry Parachute Battalion which will be formed 1 July.

Pay of Army & Marine 1st Sgts.

Approval of the bill H. R. 4343 providing that all first sergeants of the Army and Marine Corps shall receive the pay and allowances of the first pay grade was voiced by the War Department this week in a letter to the House Military Affairs Committee. The bill was introduced recently by Representative John J. Sparkman, Ala., and would have the effect of increasing the monthly base pay of a sergeant from $84 to $126. The War Department's letter stated:

"As the senior noncommissioned officer in a company, battery, or similar unit the first sergeant occupies a key position of great responsibility. Individuals are carefully selected for these assignments and in the opinion of the War Department they should receive the pay of the first grade.

"The monthly base pay of a first sergeant is now $84. The pay of the first grade is $126. Promotion from the second to the first grade would not affect allowances as they are the same for the first three grades.

"The War Department recommends enactment of H. R. 4343. The cost of this legislation, for the Army of the United States only, is estimated at $5,325,044 for the Fiscal Year 1942.

"The Bureau of the Budget advises that there would be no objection to the enactment of the proposed legislation."

The Navy Mutual Aid Association

At a regular meeting held on 13 June, the Board of Directors of the Navy Mutual Aid Association approved several changes to its By-Laws which had received a majority vote of its membership.

Some of the proposed changes were for the purpose of clarification and rearrangement. Others are intended to extend the service of Navy Mutual Aid protection.

Members may now utilize their cash value as an income endowment in lieu of a death benefit.

Beneficiaries may have any part of the benefit retained by the Association for a limited period, at interest.

The suicide clause was modified to provide for the return of premiums paid.

An important change was made in the method of effecting amendments to the By-Laws. Future proposed amendments will not be circulated to the entire membership. They will be considered by the Resident Board of Directors and the Non-Resident Directors. Since it is intended to have a Non-Resident Director on all ships carrying a member of the Association, and at all shore stations, a satisfactory cross section of the membership will be reached and much time and expense will be saved.

The Secretary stated that the returns from the votes recently circulated indicate that less than 25 per cent of the membership read the annual report, showing a regrettable lack of interest in the Association.

Tuskegee Institute Air Training

The War Department announced this week the award of an $80,000 contract to Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala., for the preliminary training of aviation cadets enrolled for the 99th Pursuit Squadron, the first colored tactical unit in the Air Corps.

The contract is for a year, during which the Institute will give preliminary instruction to approximately 100 cadets.

THE UNITED STATES ARMY

Retired Enlisted Men

The bill S. 239 authorizing the retirement of enlisted men of the Army and Philippine Scouts after 20 years of service when disabled while on active duty was passed by the House this week as a substitute for a similar House bill, H. R. 2277. The House added a committee amendment to provide that the retirement pay shall be computed on the basis of 75 per cent of the average pay the enlisted man was receiving for six months immediately prior to retirement. The Senate bill would compute the retirement pay on the basis of the pay being received at the time of retirement. In addition to the retirement pay the bill provides a money allowance of $9.50 per month in lieu of rations and clothing and $6.25 per month in lieu of quarters, fuel, and light, except that enlisted men of the Philippine Scouts will receive the same money allowances as provided for enlisted men of that organization with 30 years of service.

The bill also provides that enlisted men of the Army or Philippine Scouts who become permanently incapacitated for active service and who have had less than 20 years active service shall be discharged. The measure now goes to a conference committee where it is expected that the Senate will accept the House amendment.

The usual business of the day was transacted. Also, motions to send telegrams of congratulations to the oldest living graduate of the Military Academy, General Samuel E. Tillman USA-Ret., '69, and to General John J. Pershing, USA, '86, who was unable to be present for his 55th Reunion, were passed. General William Crozier, '76, the oldest grad present, was introduced, as was General G. Harbord, honorary member of '86.

Pay in British Currency

The Finance Department, in close collaboration with the British Government and the Treasury Department, has adopted a policy whereby all United States troops, stationed at foreign bases obtained by this country under the Lend-Lease bill, will be paid with local currency instead of regular United States money. The purpose of the policy is to prevent an up-set of the monetary arrangements at those bases.

Already soldiers stationed at Newfoundland are being paid in local currency—the Canadian dollar. Plans have been completed for payment of soldiers at Bermuda in the British monetary unit—the British pound. The order becomes effective with the June payroll. Payment of soldiers stationed at Trinidad in the local currency will be made as soon as arrangements are complete.

While it is expected that some difficulty will be encountered, especially in post exchanges, commissaries, and the like, officials of the Finance Department feel that these difficulties will be ironed out with little trouble when they arise.

Air Corps Promotion Policy

The Office of the Chief of Air Corps has issued Circular 35-2, modifying the promotions of master and technical sergeants. The new order is designed to allow greater latitude to commanding generals in the selection of their higher non-commissioned officers. It supersedes previous instructions relative to promotions except for the promotion of master and technical sergeants, Weather Service.

The two outstanding changes in the promotion policy are found in the discontinuance of the single eligible list, and the elimination of "time in grade." Under the previous policy it was required that to be eligible for promotion to the grade of master or technical sergeant, one must have served at least six months in his present grade or higher.

Discontinuance of the single promotion list primarily means that men recommended for promotion will compete with others of their own command or area, instead of with all those of the Air Corps who were recommended for promotion as under the new list. Appointments, however, will still be made by the Office of the Chief of Air Corps, and whenever practicable from the list of recommendations submitted by the commanding generals of GHQ Air Force, Air Corps Training Centers, Air Corps Technical Training Command, Air Force of the Panama Canal Department, Hawaiian Air Corps, Philippine and Puerto Rican Departments Air Corps Troops, commanding officers of the Air Corps Maintenance command and 50th Transport Wing and commanding officers of Air Corps troops not serving under any of the commanders listed above.

Under the new policy only technical sergeants are eligible for promotion to master sergeant.

General Love to Retire

Announcement was made by the War Department this week that Brig. Gen. Albert G. Love, MC, now on duty in Washington, D. C., as assistant to the Surgeon General, will retire from active service on 31 July due to reaching the statutory retirement age. His temporary appointment as brigadier general was terminated on 16 June at which time he reverted to his permanent rank of colonel.

General Love served as a contract surgeon in the Army from 1905 to 1906 after which he was appointed a first lieutenant in the Medical Corps of the Regular Army. Prior to the World War he served as surgeon at various points in the United States, the Philippines and Alaska. During and subsequent to the World War he was head of the Statistical Division in the Office of the Surgeon General. Since 1938 he has been Chief of the Planning and Training Division of that office.

A native of Tennessee, General Love was graduated from the University of Mississippi and received his medical degree from the Memphis Hospital Medical College. He served his internship in the U. S. Public Health Service.

Army School for Band Leaders

An Army Music School to provide a specialized course to prepare qualified non-commissioned officers as Warrant Officer Band Leaders, will open 1 July 1941, at the Army War College, Washington, D. C.

Twenty-five non-commissioned officers, most of whom now are assistant leaders in various regimental bands, will attend the first three-month school. Two other succeeding three-month schools are planned.

It is contemplated that in the fiscal year 1942 there will be vacancies for about 60 Warrant Officer Band Leaders. When the non-commissioned officers complete the course, they are eligible for appointment to fill these vacancies. There are 83 Army Bands actually in operation, 80 in the process of being formed, including 59 bands for Air Corps units; 23 Replacement Training Center Bands, and 234 National Guard Bands in the Federal Service.

Instruction at the school will be under the supervision of Capt. Thomas F. Darcy, conductor of the United States Army Band. He will be assisted by Warrant Officer William C. White, of the Ft. Jay, N. Y., Band, and Warrant Officer John S. Martin, leader of the 18th Infantry Band, at Ft. Hamilton, N. Y.

Those attending the school must have had at least three years' experience in an Army Band, and must be not more than 45 years old.

Provision also has been made that in all bands, except the Army Band, the United States Military Academy Band, and the Replacement Training Center Band, when a Warrant Officer Band Leader vacancy cannot be filled immediately, a temporary promotion to grade of master sergeant may be authorized for the acting band leader, pending the appointment of a Warrant Officer Band Leader.

Scientists in RCA Laboratories look into the future as they put electrons to work, opening the way for new developments in radio and other electronic fields.

Electrons are the corpuscles of radio. The vacuum tube is the heart that pumps them through the copper veins and arteries. Electricity is electrons in motion—it is the lifeblood of communications by wire and radio.

ELECTRONICS is a science born of radio. Both are members of one family. The modern radio research laboratories are electronic laboratories—the two are inseparable. Radio tube and electron tube are synonymous. Both pump the billions of electrons which flow in the electrical blood stream of communications and industry.

Putting electrons to work in a vacuum tube opened the Radio Age. It gave a voice to wireless, enabling it to talk and sing. Today, while millions of tubes glow in broadcast receivers, millions of others pulse with commercial dots and dashes, radiophotos, facsimile and television.

At the advent of broadcasting in 1920 there were a few thousand radio tubes at most, largely in the hands of experimenters. Today, there are hundreds of millions, in more than 50,000,000 American radios.

Revolutionary developments in radio since the first World War can be traced to the vacuum tube. It has been a key to progress. It has enlightened the world through broadcasting. It makes short waves, ultra-short waves and television what they are today.

Now, the wonders that the radio or electron tube has worked in communications are spreading into other electrical and industrial fields. As the research experts have developed and improved the tube, they have multiplied its uses.

As a result, today industry is being electronized. The Electronic Age is opening. The electron tube, once believed to be limited to radio, is recognized as an extremely sensitive and precise tool for manufacturing and processing control. The uses of electronics in industry appear limitless. Superhuman in its response to light, sound, touch and color, the electron tube is acclaimed as a new brain of industry.

From electronics came the electron microscope, which uses 52 radio tubes to perform as an ultra-eye that sees far into the sub-microscopic world.

In 1940, more than 106,000,000 electron tubes were produced for radio and industry, so that man might find life more pleasant and his tasks speeded and simplified, yet with accuracy and efficiency.

The electronic corpuscles of radio carry promise of new wonders as they flow silently and unseen through electricity's endless stream.

THE UNITED STATES NAVY and MARINE CORPS

selection board, be eligible to hold that rank permanently. If we applied the rule of selection by a selection board to the determination of whether or not these men should be promoted temporarily, we might find ourselves in the situation where an officer selected by a board for temporary appointment at the end of that temporary appointment would go back to his earlier grade and then when he came up for promotion in the regular manner by the regular selection board, he would have the argument, 'Here is a selection board that thought me fit for promotion.'

The general provisions of the bill were explained by Mr. Vinson as follows:

"Briefly stated, this bill provides for the temporary promotion or advancement of four classes of individuals in the Navy and Marine Corps. These are: First, enlisted men and warrant officers; second, retired officers recalled to active duty; third, officers of the Regular Navy; and, fourth, Reserve officers who are now employed on active duty because of the emergency.

"The fact that the Navy Department has recommended the temporary promotion of enlisted men and warrant officers is to me a most healthy sign. The average enlisted man spends several years in the Navy before becoming a petty officer; it then takes him several more years to acquire the experience to hold down the job of a chief petty officer; a few more years' experience and he becomes qualified for a warrant officer, and eventually a great majority who get that far become chief warrant officers. These individuals are essentially specialists. That is, they have spent their entire service dealing with one type of material or one particular activity and they are eminently well suited for additional responsibilities in their own particular lines. The decision to utilize these men in the highest capacity in which they are capable of performing their duties is not only a most intelligent one on the part of the Navy Department, but it has the happy advantage of opening the door of opportunity to the average American boy who enters the Navy and chooses to pursue this as his life work.

Praise Warrant Officers

"Naval officers are unanimous in their opinion that warrant officers and chief warrant officers are key men on board ship and that many of them are desirable material for greater responsibilities and increased rank.

"Another class of men this bill has reference to is that large number of officers who have been recalled to duty from the retired list. They, by virtue of their experience, are able to perform certain duties far better than the personnel which lacks that experience. It is far better to call back to active duty men who have served from 7 to 30 years and then gone on the retired list than to try to take into that duty new men who have no naval background.

"This bill provides that these retired officers, if they are qualified therefor, may be advanced in rank on the retired list while on active duty; and that when the emergency ends these retired officers will retain that rank on the retired list. In addition, provision is made for the temporary promotion of regular officers on the active list, this being necessary because of the requirements of existing law relative to eligibility for promotion with respect to service in grade, and because of the additional responsibilities which must be placed on the shoulders of these officers. It is almost axiomatic that the rank should accompany the responsibility. I have been informed by the Navy Department that these temporary promotions will be made by applying the selection principle and that vacancies will be filled as the need for them arises.

"The bill does not permit the advancement in rank of an officer on the retired list unless the officer is called back to active duty.

"The provisions of this bill are made applicable also to personnel of the Naval Reserve, the idea being to parallel for the Naval Reserve, insofar as possible, the system of advancement and promotion provided for the Regular Navy. This is only fair and should constitute a great incentive for members of the Naval Reserve, many of whom have made great sacrifices in order to serve their country during this emergency.

Benefit Reserves

"So you see we are trying to give to the Naval Reserve officer the same benefit we are giving to the Regular officer.

"I wish to invite attention particularly to the fact that all those members of the Regular Navy who are temporarily promoted under this bill will revert to their permanent rank when the emergency ends. In other words, this is not a continuing promotion, and an officer of the Regular Navy will, in effect, occupy a dual status. For example, a lieutenant commander who is temporarily promoted to commander will, if in the meantime he is not permanently advanced, revert to the grade of lieutenant commander when the emergency is over; but when he eventually retires, if he has not in the meantime been permanently promoted, he will be placed on the retired list with the highest grade held by him while on active duty. This is in keeping with prior provisions of law enacted during and after the last war.

"The primary purpose of this bill is to provide the means whereby the necessary number of officers may be temporarily appointed or temporarily promoted to meet the needs of the service as they develop."

The following remarks in support of the bill were delivered by Representative Melvin J. Maas, Minn., ranking Republican member of the Naval Affairs Committee:

"The bill provides that enlisted men of both the Regular service and the Reserve may be commissioned temporarily during the emergency. They will be penalized nothing by accepting this commission, because their promotion in their permanent status can still go on. In other words, a sergeant may be commissioned in the Marine Corps temporarily and can continue up the various pay grades and ranks of sergeant to that of first sergeant or quartermaster sergeant. Then when he reverts from his commissioned status to his permanent enlisted status he will have advanced in rank as he would have had he remained in the enlisted status.

"The question of the method of providing this promotion is one to which the committee gave a good deal of study, and left it in the discretion of the President, which, of course, we assume to mean largely on the recommendation of the Secretary of the Navy.

"It is a grave question in my mind whether it would be wise to provide by legislation as rigid a system as the selection system or any rigid system of promotion. This is an emergency. Flexibility is required. We might do an officer a great deal of permanent injury if we require a promotion to be made by a selection board. A selection board might fail to promote an officer temporarily, and might select some officer junior to him for temporary promotion because that officer might be a specialist, and it would do this with no reference at all to the ability of the first officer; yet when the emergency is over or when the permanent selection boards consider that officer they may take into consideration the fact that he was not promoted temporarily, and it may militate against his permanent promotion. That is just one consideration that ought to be given to this matter."

Mr. COLE of New York. "If we write into this legislation the requirements of temporary promotion by virtue of formal action of the selective board, and the selective board does promote an officer temporarily, would not that be tantamount to a permanent promotion because of the fact that a formal selective board has passed on this man's qualifications? And even after the temporary emergency is over and a new board comes along to pass on this man's qualifications, that new board will say that he has been selected previously for temporary appointment and therefore they have got to put him up for permanent promotion."

Mr. MAAS. "I think that is quite likely, but the whole purpose of a thing like this is for the emergency; and you can imagine a situation in the case of a combatant ship, we will say a destroyer, the captain is disabled or killed in action and a junior officer to him takes command, and then it is the desire of the Navy because he has demonstrated his ability to command the ship to give him the temporary rank so he can continue in command, but they must wait for perhaps 8 months until a selective board has acted. The selection board might not even get to him then. The very heart of this measure is the necessity for flexibility. You can visualize a situation that might apply to the marines, where a man may distinguish himself in action. He may be a lieutenant of a company and his other officers may be killed. But he demonstrates his ability to lead that company and they desire to temporarily promote him to captain, but if we put him under a rigid provision for promotion by selection it might be a year before the board meets. It seems to me to be utterly out of harmony with the purpose of the legislation."

Another speaker endorsing the measure was Representative Edwin Arthur Hall, N. Y., who said in part:

"I want to emphasize the necessity of a system of fair and equitable selection of officers and the degree of their advancement as now exists in the Navy or in any branch of the armed forces of the United States. . . .

"I maintain that men must be able to rise, not because of rank, position, and prestige, but by the only fair, equitable, and American way, through the rewards of effort, trial, ability, and experience."

Discusses Selection

Mr. Maas also objected to the insertion of a selection clause in the bill, but it was supported by Mr. Vinson. During the debate on the question, the following remarks were made:

Mr. DITTER. "What I am concerned with is not the matter of their retention, and the gentleman knows that well. We realize they will be retained for the present. What I am concerned about is whether the gentleman feels that there is departmental assurance, if the bill does not give them the assurance, that they will receive that promotion which was a part of the original agreement under which they became identified permanently with the establishment."

Mr. MAAS. "Yes; I will say for my part, and I think there is no one in this House who has any greater interest in that group than I have, and I know it is equally shared with my friend from Pennsylvania—I am personally satisfied that if this bill becomes a law those men will be given fair and equal treatment, and they will be given preference even over, we will say, Reserve officers with less experience but equal rank in promotion."

Mr. DITTER. "Of course, I realize the vast knowledge and experience of my friend, and I have the highest regard for his opinion. I wonder whether he recalls that on page 1179 of the hearings, the name of Julian H. Detyns is listed, and that he has after 20 years of flying finally reached that exalted grade of lieutenant, junior grade."

Mr. MAAS. "Yes; I notice that."

Mr. DITTER. "Will the gentleman say he feels that record will be conducive to encouraging the group that we are presently calling in in this present emergency, the young men? Will that record be conducive for those men to give their best if, after 20 years this man Detyns has gotten the exalted grade of lieutenant, junior grade?"

Mr. MAAS. "No; it will not. If that were the rule in the Navy, it certainly would not be conducive to their coming in. It would be very discouraging. But it is not the rule."

Mr. DITTER. "Has the gentleman any reason to believe anything different will happen to others?"

Mr. MAAS. "Yes; because a majority of those are now commanders or lieutenant commanders."

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. "The man that the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Ditter) is talking about is a warrant officer, who came in."

Mr. DITTER. "And who were flyers when in that grade. This man I know was flying."

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. "The gentleman from Pennsylvania has put a wrong interpretation upon it. The thing we are trying to do is the thing he is complaining about, that we have already done and it has not worked satisfactorily, and that is, to open the door to the petty officers, the warrant officers to get a commission."

Mr. MAAS. "That is correct. He can come in under this bill as a full lieutenant."

Navy Greetings On Radio

Two special broadcasts by naval personnel as part of Father's Day observance last Sunday took place with the cooperation of the Navy Department.

Through the facilities of the National Broadcasting Company, the five sons of Thomas D. Horton, Yemassee, S. C., sent greetings from the NBC studios in New York. The five sons all are attached to the USS Wichita. They are Thomas D. Jr., Edmund L., Hal G., William F., and John L. Horton. The father responded to the greetings from the NBC studios in Washington, D. C.

A two-way conversation also took place over the CBS facilities between seven naval officers now in London and their children in the United States. Those taking part were: Comdr. C. L. Austin (SC), and his daughter, Mimi Austin, Annapolis, Md.; Comdr. C. A. Baker and his daughter, Patricia Baker, Washington, D. C.; Comdr. R. J. Townsend and his son, Charles Townsend, Washington, D. C.; Lt. Comdr. B. L. Austin and his three children, Alexandria, Jane Stuart, and Isabella Leith Austin, Norfolk, Va.; Comdr. E. W. Sylvester and his daughter, Anne Baird Sylvester, Chevy Chase, Md.; and Lt. Comdr. K. M. McManes and his twin sons, Kenmore and Spencer McManes, Annapolis, Md.

Navy Section Bases

Approval of the bill H. R. 3536 authorizing appropriation of $50,000,000 for the construction of Navy section bases was voted by the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs this week. The bill passed the House several weeks ago and in its present form includes authorization for $10,000,000 already appropriated for this purpose.

With the funds already appropriated, the Navy Department is constructing 31 section bases at various points in the continental United States, Alaska, Cuba, Hawaii, the Philippines and the Panama Canal Zone. The additional funds will finance construction of 29 new section bases at locations not yet announced.

The section bases are intended to serve small vessels converted to Naval use and regular Navy vessels up to the size of a destroyer. "The establishment of a number of these section bases," says the committee report, "is calculated to facilitate the operations of the local defense forces and at the same time relieve navy yards of much of the material and logistic work incident thereto."

Pay for Temporary Rank

do this in time of war by provisions of the original act of 1922, but unless my amendment is agreed to we are going to freeze the pay of many of the officers affected. Even though a man may be a commander in the Navy, he still cannot get the pay until he has served the required number of years, and, of course, that defeats the very purpose of the advancement or promotion which we are trying to give him."

After being told by Representative Carl Vinson, Ga., chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee of the House that the Bureau of Navigation had no objection to the amendment, Mr. Izac expressed satisfaction and added: "I can see no justification for holding these men indefinitely in a pay grade at a time the Navy is expanding because we need these officers, and when we increase their responsibility by an increase in rank we should be prepared to give them the money that goes with the rank."

Rep. Maas Backs Amendment

A strong plea for support of the amendment also was voiced by Representative Melvin J. Maas, Minn., ranking Republican member of the Naval Affairs Committee, who said in part:

"It is obviously unfair to promote an officer and then not give him the pay of the grade to which promoted. He is going to assume greater responsibilities and frequently will be put to additional expense. The situation would be very unfair, as you would have two officers of the same rank, working side by side and doing the same work, with one receiving substantially higher pay than the other. If the emergency requires that temporary promotions be instituted, then it also justifies the officers receiving the pay of such promotions. Unless we adopt this amendment, we may very well find ourselves in the position of engaging in an undeclared war, so that the provisions of law intended to give additional pay to officers temporarily promoted would not come into operation under the very circumstances which the law contemplated; that is, in time of war."

Mr. Brooks also spoke in behalf of the amendment. He decided at the last minute not to propose an amendment to include the Army in the pay-for-promotion provision of the Navy bill "in order not to unduly delay the measure." He said later:

"We are going to get the promotion and pay bill through for the Army too. I haven't given up the Army; I was just over helping the Navy out a little. My pay bill has struck a small snag in the Military Committee and I just went around the left end and helped get the bill through for the Navy. It is just a ques-

U. S. COAST GUARD

RECRUITING activities of the Coast Guard are being stepped up to fill a number of vacancies caused by the transfer of approximately 3,000 Coast Guardsmen to the Navy's transport service. Applicants must be between 18 and 31 years old and need have only a grammar school education. Enlistments are for three years.

Enlistments are being encouraged both in the regular service and in the Coast Guard Reserve. Among the vacancies are those for yeomen, boatswain's mates and machinists' mates. Officials expressed confidence that the vacancies will be filled in short order.

Coast Guardsmen transferred to the Navy transport service will operate as a part of the Navy in accordance with an executive order issued by the President which was printed in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL last week. A number of the men transferred were taken from Coast Guard cutters recently turned over to England and others were collected from Coast Guard stations throughout the country to avoid unduly weakening any one station. Rear Adm. Russell R. Waesche, commandant, is quoted as expressing the opinion that the men can be spared without interrupting the regular work of the Coast Guard.

Nominated for Promotion

The President this week sent to the Senate nominations for promotion to be captains with rank from 1 June 1941 of tion of time now before we get the same thing for the Army too. We will put it through if it is the last thing I do in Congress."

Enlisted Pay

Earlier in the week Representative Edwin Arthur Hall, N. Y., made a radio speech in behalf of his bill, H. R. 4944, which would substantially increase the monthly base pay of enlisted men of the Army to the following schedule: First grade, $126; second grade, $84; third grade, $72; fourth grade, $60; fifth grade, $54; sixth grade, $48; and seventh grade, $42. In the course of his speech he declared:

"They constitute the very backbone of the protection which Uncle Sam must count upon if and when the far-flung and aggressive forces of the dictators see fit to penetrate the Western Hemisphere. They are deserving of their hire, and it should be the very best that this nation can possibly provide."

Annual Training Cruise

The Maritime Service Training Vessel American Seaman, with cadets from the first and third classes from the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., arrived at St. Thomas, V. I., her first port of call on her 1941 cadet cruise on 7 June and departed on 10 June for San Juan, P. R., arriving the same day. On 13 June the vessel departed for Kingston, Jamaica.

Special Assignments

Orders have been issued transferring the Cutter Walnut (tender class) from Detroit, Mich., to permanent station at Honolulu, T. H. The change of stations is scheduled to take place this month. The new Cutter Sycamore (tender class) has been ordered to permanent station at Dubuque, Iowa.

The Cutter Redwing is now on a special fisheries and observation cruise with representatives of Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, having sailed from Seattle last month. The cruise is expected to be terminated about 15 Sept. 1941.

Supplemental Estimate

A supplemental estimate of appropriation for the Treasury Department in the amount of $600 to pay damages caused by Coast Guard vessels was sent to Congress this week by the President. The sum is asked to pay for repairs to a wharf in Portland, Me., which was damaged by the Cutter Pequot while the vessel was being maneuvered into position for the purpose of taking on coal.

Coast Guard Women

The regular monthly meeting and tea of the Washington, D. C. unit of the League of Coast Guard Women was held recently at the home of Mrs. W. N. Derby. The Red Cross committee reported 102 hours for surgical dressings, 21 hours of sewing and 170 hours of knitting. Names of members who have won the privilege of wearing the Red Cross pin were announced as being Mrs. C. A. Park, Mrs. N. B. Hall, Mrs. R. R. Tinkham, Mrs. I. L. Gill and Mrs. T. P. Fowler. Mrs. J. H. Chalker, who is now in her 81st year, donated a beautiful afghan made with her own hands of wool she also donated.

SATURDAY, JUNE 21, 1941

"The nation that cannot resist aggression is constantly exposed to it."

GROVER CLEVELAND.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Legislative assurance, now, that our land, sea, and air forces will be maintained at such strengths as may be determined by the War Department General Staff and the General Board of the Navy to be necessary to guard the nation and its interests against any enemy or combination of enemies.
2. Upward revision of pay schedules for commissioned, warrant and enlisted personnel, active and retired; all temporarily promoted officers to receive pay of grade in which serving.
3. A long range study by the General Board of the Navy to the end that an equitable and just system of promotion for the line and staff of the Navy and Marine Corps be enacted into law.
4. Revision of pension laws to assure service widows a living income.
5. Compensation for service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on government business.

THERE are many reasons why the President should appoint an Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air. A comparable Office has been reestablished in the War Department under the direction of Mr. Robert A. Lovett, and it is generally agreed that the cooperation which exists between him and General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, is producing results, which will assure more effective administration, development and operation of the important air arm of the military establishment. The efficiency of the Navy's air service cannot be doubted, and directed as it is by Rear Admiral John H. Towers and other capable officers, it is to be expected that it will be increased through application of the lessons of the wars abroad. But there is one phase of the Administration which is lacking, and that is direct authority to reconcile conflicting views in the High Command itself, and to satisfy the public that the Air is regarded as having the same high standing in the Sea as in the Land Service. No one should assume that the Navy is not air minded. Over the years it has led foreign Services, as the records demonstrate, and a remarkable degree of cooperation and coordination has been achieved between the three branches, the plane, the surface ship and the submarine. What was not appreciated was the extent of the vulnerability of the surface ship to bombs. It was realized that destroyers and submarines and even light cruisers, could be destroyed by plane action. But it required British and German experience to bring home the necessity of reinforcement of the surface ship. Some months before retiring from the Navy Department, Mr. Charles Edison emphasized the importance of strengthening surface vessels in commission, and redesigning those to be laid down, in order to minimize the effects of aerial bombardments. Some steps in this direction have been taken, but there remain many of our ships yet to be reinforced in order the more effectively to withstand aerial attack. Reappointment of an Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air would give to the Department a specialized set up, which would be more authoritative than is now the case in applying the lessons of the Bismark, the North Sea and the Mediterranean, and in coordinating the work of the several bureaus so as to secure the maximum of cooperation and coordination in any missions entrusted to the Service.

THE promptness with which the House of Representatives this week accepted the Izac amendment assuring pay of grade to personnel of the Navy and Marine Corps given temporary advanced rank revealed the understanding attitude of the majority of the House toward this problem and their readiness to correct it. Unfortunately, legal opinion seems unanimous that the wording of the amendment on the Navy promotion bill would not permit the pay-of-grade principle to be applied to those officers of the Regular Army who are now being deprived of the pay of the ranks in which they are serving. However, Representative Overton Brooks, of Louisiana, sponsor of the bill to accomplish this purpose for the Army, is redoubling his efforts to secure action by the House Military Committee. His bill is now locked in the subcommittee of which Representative Charles I. Faddis of Pennsylvania is chairman. No action has been taken on it because of Mr. Faddis' opposition, but in view of the House's wholehearted endorsement of the principle of pay-of-grade in the Navy bill Mr. Brooks now feels assured that he can get full committee approval in spite of Mr. Faddis. Under present conditions many second lieutenants of the Regular Army temporarily advanced to and serving in the grade of first lieutenants are still receiving only the pay of the lower grade. The same situation prevails among many Regular Army first lieutenants advanced to be captains and captains advanced to be majors. It is particularly embarrassing because, under the pay act, all officers of the National Guard and Reserve Corps receive the pay of their rank and there is thus often created the anomaly of senior officers receiving the pay of a grade lower than that of officers under them. This is not only harmful to the morale of the officers affected, but is bound to make their position as commanders more difficult because all the junior officers and enlisted personnel know that the rank is so tenuous that the holder is not even paid for it. We urge Chairman May to report this measure promptly and press its passage through the House.

Service Humor

Further proof that the 2nd Armored Division is taking seriously its approaching "battle" in south central Tennessee may be gleaned from the following order issued by division headquarters at Ft. Benning, Ga., shortly before the Panzer unit prepared Friday to depart for Tennessee:

"In the event any member of this division is captured during the Tennessee maneuvers, he should only give his name, rank, and serial number. No other information should be given."

The wife and daughter of one Lieutenant Berry were halted by a sentry on duty, who had orders to allow no one to enter by the gate.

"Sorry, but you'll have to go around to the main gate," he told them.

"Oh, but we're the Berrys," exclaimed the haughty woman.

"Lady, I don't care if you're the cat's meow. You can't go through this gate," the sentry answered.

How About Flies?

It was while the Big White Fleet was going around the world some thirty years ago that an American bluejacket was invited to an Australian ranch. He was unimpressed by the ranchman's sheep.

"We have sheep twice as big as that in America," said the sailor.

"How about cows?" asked his host, as he pointed to some cattle.

"Our cows are double that size."

Suddenly a kangaroo hopped into view. "For the love of Mike, what's that?" asked the bluejacket.

"Nothing," yawned the Australian. "That's just one of our grasshoppers."

ASK THE JOURNAL

SEND your queries to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL QUESTION EDITOR and an answer will be given in this column as soon as possible after receipt.

A. F. B.—You are not entitled to travel allowance for your dependents on the change of station you mention since at the time your orders were issued you were in fourth pay grade. Only men of the first three pay grades are entitled to travel for their dependents, and the fact that you were promoted to staff sergeant after arriving at your new station does not make you eligible for the allowance.

H. L.—Men for foreign departments are being obtained by requisitions on replacement centers under the Army's new policy, explained in detail on page 1165 of our 14 June issue. You may request assignment to a foreign department when you reenlist, but the Army does not guarantee to transfer you in accordance with your wishes.

H. E. B.—Until warrant officer legislation becomes law, the Army will make no definite statements about formation of a new eligible list. It appears, however, that there will be an educational examination which every candidate will be required to take, and that men must also show qualification in their technical specialty. Enlisted men now on duty as reserve officers most probably will be given a chance to take any examination scheduled.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—A new climax in world affairs is rapidly approaching. Following the sinking of the American freighter Robin Moor by a German submarine in the South Atlantic, sharp measures have been taken by Washington in expression of our resentment at this inhuman violation of International Law and the Treaty of London of 1930. France has been advised of our displeasure at the extent of the collaboration she is giving to the Axis, especially in the resistance her troops are offering to the Franco-British expedition invading Syria. Concentration of powerful German Armies upon the Russian frontier is responsible for reports of impending conflict between the Soviet Union and the Reich. Germany has succeeded in signing a non-aggression pact with Turkey. Ambassador Grew has protested against the peril to our Embassy and the gunboat Tutulla caused by Japanese bombing of Chungking. Japan has broken off the negotiations with the Dutch East Indies because of the refusal of the latter to permit it to enlarge its economic interests in the Islands, particularly those relating to aviation and oil. The Portuguese Government is continuing its protests against President Roosevelt's reference in his 27 May radio address to American interest in the Azores and Cape Verde Islands, although reports are current that German submarines are refueling at two islets, Sao Vicente and Sao Tiago, belonging to the latter group. Brazil is officially supporting the correctness of Mr. Roosevelt's attitude. In a fighting speech at Montreal, Secretary Knox said the American people are at the hour of decision, and predicted the decision would be on the side of human liberty. At a Press conference, the President endorsed the Secretary's speech. Advocating the enactment of the agreement with Canada for the development of the St. Lawrence Waterway, Secretary Stimson declared: "We face the possibility of a long war, a very strong possibility."

Thus the atmosphere at home and abroad. The actions taken by the President during the past week were the freezing of Axis assets in the United States, the closure of all German consulates in American territory, prohibition of the departure from our shores of any German national, whether diplomat or private individual, and, in direct connection with the sinking of the Robin Moor, notice that Germany is held responsible for this wanton incident. In retaliation, Germany and Italy seized American assets, closed American consulates therein, and may refuse permission for Americans to leave their territories. There is no doubt Germany will uphold the torpedoing of the Robin Moor on the ground that she was carrying supplies, which would have been useful to Britain.

It is apparent Hitler and Mussolini are determined to place upon the United States the onus of entrance into the war. This determination is believed to be based upon three grounds, first, delay until the conquest of the United Kingdom shall have been achieved, second, to justify a claim to the American people that the Axis, with reluctance, accepted us as an enemy, and, third, to strengthen a demand that Japan engage in the war because her partners in the Triple Alliance have been attacked. So far as the first reason is concerned, from northern Europe have come reports of German reinforcements in Norway, which could be used for an air assault upon Scotland, and British planes have been active in bombing troop concentrations at French and Belgian ports on the English Channel. As to the second reason, Hitler and Mussolini are well aware of the value of division amongst a people they desire to subdue, and, by demonstrating an unwillingness to take on the United States as another enemy, they hope to strengthen American opposition to President Roosevelt's policy. The third reason is explained by the fact that the agreement under which Japan entered the Triple Alliance provides that she can act if a Third Power moves against the Axis. Therefore, the European Dictators desire to make it appear positive that the United States is the aggressor. The Japanese people are being further excited against the United States and Britain because of Tokyo's claim that it was at the instance of those two countries that the Dutch East Indies refused to comply with the economic demands made upon them. Further irritating the Japanese is the order forbidding one of their tankers to load American oil at Philadelphia, which Secretary Ickes explained was due to shortage of the fuel for eastern factories.

The Soviet Union is insisting that foreign reports of war between it and Germany are pure propaganda, that Germany has made no unusual demands upon it, and that the movement of Reich troops and its own soldiers are not indicative of any hostile purpose. There is no doubt that Stalin and Hitler distrust each other, and the former necessarily apprehends that food needs for the New Order, which Der Fuehrer is establishing, is causing him to look with envious eye upon the Ukraine. It is known that negotiations have been going on between the two men for some time. Hitler would like Stalin to enter the Triple Alliance, falling which he wants him to participate in the New Order. The Russian leader prefers to pursue a policy of independence, which will enable him to seize some of the spoils of Hitler's conquests. The best informed diplomats in Washington predict an agreement will be reached whereby Russia will supply Germany with additional foodstuffs and oil. The Treaty Germany and Turkey have signed has an important bearing upon the former's relations with Russia. The latter now is assured that the Reich will not require Turkey to permit troop passage to Syria, and will not seize the Dardanelles, which will mean that the Straits from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean will remain open to Soviet ships. In spite of this indication of understanding between Moscow and Berlin, rumors are in circulation that Germany is about to invade the Soviet Union and in preparation therefore Finland, a Reich Ally, is mobilizing to assist. It may well be that German and Finnish troop concentrations are clouding an attack upon England, and that the strengthening of German forces in Norway, Denmark and the Low Countries is for the purpose of suppressing revolt in case of repulse of the invasion.

Secretary Hull's appeal to the French people to refuse to endorse the policy of the Vichy Government of collaboration with the Axis has been followed by a radio address by Marshal Petain asking them to give him their support. The stout resistance of the French in Syria, which Vichy is encouraging, is accepted as proof that the Petain Ministry is moving toward closer and closer cooperation with the Axis Powers. What we are seeking is repudiation by the French people of any collaboration Vichy may arrange. There are threats that Ambassador Leahy may be recalled, and the stay of the French Ambassador in Washington is not apt to be long because of the public criticism he is making of the President's policy.

Army Nurses Corps—The number of Army Nurses on active duty is expected to exceed 5,000 by 30 June although the total number on duty a year ago was only 942. By the end of this month it is expected that the total will include 1,875 Regular Army Nurses, the present maximum number permitted, and 3,744 Reserves. The nurses now serve 160 stations compared with only 55 on 1 July 1940. The procurement quota has been set at approximately 8,400 for this year. Pay for Army nurses is $70 per month plus full maintenance of mess, quarters, room, and uniforms.

Navy League—To provide for the ever-increasing demand occasioned by the Navy expansion program, the Navy League of the United States has created new positions where it will have regional and state vice-presidents. The regional vice-presidents will be liaison officers between the various naval districts and the Navy League members in their naval districts, while the state vice-presidents will handle the local activities in each state. This means also a substantial increase in the board of directors as there will be representatives hereafter on the board from every state in the Union. Mr. Sheldon Clark of Chicago who is President of the Navy League is also vice chairman of the Joint Committee of the Army & Navy for Welfare and Recreation and in this dual capacity can and does easily recognize the civic responsibility which this emergency is placing upon the Navy League of the United States in its national program.

Air Corps—Sites for five new Air Corps schools were announced by the War Department last week. The schools will handle about 250 aviation cadets and 1,500 officers. The schools are to be established as follows: Bombardment and Advanced Twin Engine Training School, Midland, Texas; Advanced Twin Engine Training School, Victorville, Calif.; Basic Training School, Sebring, Fla.; Twin Engine Training School, Lubbock, Texas; and Basic Training School, Higley, Ariz.

It was also announced that construction programs for four other schools have been approved by the War Department. Sites and the type of schools to be established follow: Advanced Single Engine School, Lake Charles, La.; Basic Flying School, Sumter, S. C.; Basic School, Greenville, Miss.; and Advanced Twin Engine School, Valdosta, Ga.

A $14,000,000 Air Corps depot will be established 13 miles south of Macon, Ga., at Wellston. The Wellston site is the second to be selected of five new depots planned by the Air Corps under its expansion program. Approximately 350 officers and enlisted men will be stationed at the depot which will employ about 2,800 civilians.

Orders have been issued for the transfer of the following Air Corps units to newly established schools to augment training units stationed at those posts: 321st, 322nd, and 323rd School Sqdns., the 71st Air Base Group; Hqs. and Hq. Sqdn. (Sp.), 61st A.B. Sqdn. (Sp.), and the 77th Materiel Sqdn., from Maxwell Field, Ala., to Macon, Ga.; the 79th A.B. Group (Sp.) Hqs. and Hq. Sqdn. (Sp.), 70th A.B. Sqdn. (Sp.), 84th Materiel Sqdn. (Sp.), 50th, 51st, 351st, 352nd, and 353rd School Sqdns., from Brooks Field, Tex., to Las Vegas, Nev.; 79th Materiel Sqdn. (Sp.), and 320th School Sqdn., from Kelly Field, Tex., to Taft, Calif.; 326th School Sqdn. from Moffett Field, Calif., to Bakersfield, Calif.; 327th School Sqdn. from Kelly Field, Tex., to Bakersfield, Calif.; Hqs. and Hq. Sqdn. (Sp.), 77th A.B. Group (Sp.), 67th A.B. Sqdn. (Sp.), 83rd Materiel Sqdn. (Sp.) and 333rd and 335th School Sqdns. from Stockton, Calif., to Mather Field, Calif.; and 336th, 337th, 338th, 339th, 340th, 341st and 342nd School Sqdns. from Randolph Field, Texas, to Mather Field, Calif.

Two other Air Corps Groups, the 54th Pursuit Group, and the 40th Air Base Group also have been ordered transferred for a permanent change of station. The 40th Group will be moved from Maxwell Field, Ala., to Key Field, Miss., while the 54th Pursuit will be transferred from Hamilton Field, Calif., to the Air Corps Facility, Everett, Wash.

Coast Artillery Corps—The War Department is now studying modification in the training program at Coast Artillery Replacement Centers recommended at a conference of the commanding generals of the three centers in the Office of the Chief of Coast Artillery Corps this week.

Training of replacements of all types at the Coast Artillery Corps replacement centers is built about a 12-week course of 528 hours. Generally the first four weeks see uniform instruction in basic subjects for all kinds of replacements. Specialist instruction begins the fifth week and continues through the eighth or the twelfth week, depending upon difficulty. There is, of course, no exactly uniform course of instruction for every man entering the centers, due to the many different activities embraced in the Coast Artillery.

An additional 178 Coast Artillery Corps Reserve officers have been ordered to active duty for assignment to the Barrage Balloon Training Center at Camp Davis, N. C., in addition to 33 Reserve officers already on duty, who were ordered transferred to the center. This completes the initial group of student officers who will attend the school.

Most of the men will serve as student officers in the 301st Coast Artillery Battalion (Barrage Balloon) which was created 1 June at Camp Davis, but some will be assigned as part of the permanent school faculty. It is expected that most of these officers will be used to organize and train additional barrage balloon battalions after their school instruction has been completed.

Meanwhile, selected members of the First and Second Barrage Balloon Squadrons of the Air Corps will join at Camp Davis the Third Squadron now enroute from its station at Ft. Lewis, Wash. These units will give the basic training to some 2,200 enlisted men who have been assembled from trainee centers, and organize the school instructional program before the arrival of the student officers.

Training at the school will continue until fall. Preliminary study in the use of balloon barrages was made by the Air Corps and this arm of the service is still in charge of the development and procurement of balloon equipment. Barrage balloon defense, which also was formerly a function of the Air Corps, has been made a responsibility of the Coast Artillery Corps. The commanding officer of the training center at Camp Davis and commandant of the school is Col. Robert Arthur, CAC.

Travel Pay—The War Department has decided that a warrant officer, or flying cadet or other enlisted man of the Army who is discharged and ordered to active duty the next day as a Reserve officer at a different station is in a permanent change of station status and is entitled to all of the allowances due him as a Reserve officer upon permanent change of station. This decision will insure that said warrant officers or enlisted men will receive travel pay for their dependents. Formerly, only enlisted men of the first three grades were given travel pay for dependents when ordered to active duty, and in some cases, these men had difficulty in obtaining payment.

Navy Recruiting—Coincident with the end of the school year throughout the United States the Navy's Bureau of Navigation is speeding up activities of the Navy Recruiting Service and has set a goal of from 12,000 to 15,000 recruits a month for an indefinite period. Present recruiting rate is now about 8,000 a month. Reports from the 36 recruiting stations in the five recruiting districts indicate a marked upswing in the past five weeks. Plans are being completed by the Bureau of Navigation for an advertising campaign in small town papers to aid in the recruiting of desirable men. The small town newspaper campaign is only the start of a general advertising campaign which will utilize all media for reaching the public. The contract for the campaign has not been let.

Adjutant General's Department—An Adjutant General's School, with Lt. Col. Herbert C. Holdridge, AGD, as first commandant, will be established next month at Arlington Cantonment, Va. The school will enable continuance on a permanent basis of the classes which have been held since August 1940 at the Army War College. It is estimated that about 1,000 officers holding the higher administrative billets should be afforded training at the Adjutant General's School, while an additional 1,000 officers and about 5,000 noncommissioned officers will require some form of decentralized instruction. A group of buildings especially selected for the purpose, will be reconditioned for use by the new school. Provisions are being made for instruction of 200 officers in each six-weeks' course. The first course of instruction will begin about 21 July.

Quotas of students will be allotted by The Adjutant General to corps area commanders, and to commanders of the field forces, the Air Corps and the Armored Force.

Orders were issued this week to a number of other officers to assist Colonel Holdridge on the staff of the school, including Maj. Leland S. Smith, AGD; Maj. John D. Kenderdine, Inf.; Maj. Leslie Stanley, Inf.; Capt. Julian E. Barbour, FA; Capt. Henry B. Hohman, QMC; Capt. Charles F. Knowlton, Jr., AGD; Capt. John W. Mann, Cav.; Capt. Arthur P. P. Nesbit, Inf.; Capt. Harold G. Penny, Inf.; Capt. Louis P. Warren, AGD; 1st Lt. Robert Bruce, AGD, and 1st Lt. John D. McLeod, Inf.

Finance Department—Finance offices for the 36th National Guard Division, stationed at Camp Bowie, Texas, and the 1st Armored Division, at Ft. Knox, Ky., have been activated, it was announced this week. Lt. Col. Myron Blalock is in charge of the 36th Division offices, and Maj. A. W. Farwick commands the 1st Armored Division offices.

Quartermaster Corps—A new Depot Division has been established in the Office of The Quartermaster General in Washington with Lt. Col. Joseph W. G. Stephens in charge. The continental United States has been divided into nine areas, each of which will be served by a Quartermaster or general depot to handle purchase, storage and distribution of non-perishable food. The depots will be located at Boston, Mass., Jersey City, N. J., Charlotte, N. C., Atlanta, Ga., New Orleans, La., Chicago, Ill., Kansas City, Mo., San Francisco, Calif., and San Antonio, Texas.

Officers and directors of the National Association of Retail Grocers were served regulation field rations in official Army mess kits by the Chicago Quartermaster Depot at a recent luncheon. Supervising were Lt. Col. R. A. Isker and Maj. J. H. White who helped develop the new type "C" ration. This is a canned ration carried by each soldier in the field for use when he is separated from his field kitchen or mess hall.

A brief description of the operations of the Chicago Depot were given by Col. Henry B. Barry, commanding officer, in a radio interview last week over Station WLS. He told the radio audience that the depot handles some 4,500 different items but dwelt principally on clothing. During the month of May the depot handled shipments totaling 84,217,831 pounds of Army food, clothing and equipment. The depot's crew of transportation experts is headed by Maj. J. J. Madigan. No less than 9,000,000 cans of cooked Army reserve ration have been purchased by the depot at a total cost, exclusive of handling and packing, of $836,664.67.

A remarkable safety record has been established by the Quartermaster Corps in Army construction since the first of the year, the number of accidents being only about two and one-half per cent although an average daily force of about 394,000 men have worked a total of 94,000,000 hours. A vigorous campaign by the Safety Unit, Construction Division of the Quartermaster Corps, has kept accidents to a minimum even though the men were working in such hazardous occupations as dynamiting, pile driving, dam building, caisson sinking, and excavating.

Officers Candidate Schools—All warrant officers and enlisted men attending Officer Candidate Schools have been authorized to wear a distinctive insignia, consisting of a small cloth disk of the same color and material as that used for chevrons. On coats the disk will be worn four inches above the lower edge of the right sleeve and on shirts it will be worn on the left breast pocket.

Army Chaplains—Chaplain William R. Arnold, Chief of Chaplains, was given a bouquet of 28 American Beauty roses on 10 June by Chaplains on duty in the Office of Chief of Chaplains in Washington, D. C., in honor of his birthday which is the 28th he has celebrated in the service of the Army. Chaplain Arnold, who is the first Roman Catholic to be designated Chief of Chaplains, was appointed a chaplain on 7 May 1913 and stationed at Ft. Washington, Md. He was promoted through the grades until he was named Chief of Chaplains on 23 Dec. 1937 with the grade of colonel.

Chaplain John O. Lindquist, Chaplain of the Second Corps Area, was awarded the degree of Doctor of Divinity at the 81st annual convocation of Augustana College and Theological Seminary, Rock Island, Ill., on 2 June.

Several Chaplains Training Conferences held early this month are reported to have been well attended. The Fifth Corps Area CCC Conference at Ft. Hayes, Ohio, on 3 and 4 June was conducted by Col. William J. McCaughey and Chaplain Milton O. Beebe, Corps Area Chaplain, with Chaplain Ira Freeman representing the Office of Chief of Chaplains. The office was represented by Chaplain John J. Allan at the Third Corps Area Conference at Camp Lee, Va., on the same day, which was conducted by Chaplain Maurice Reynolds, Corps Area Chaplain. The First Corps Area and VI Army Corps Conference in Boston, Mass., was conducted by Chaplains James H. O'Neill, First Corps Area, and Ralph C. Delbert, VI Army Corps, with Chaplain John J. Monahan representing the Office of Chief of Chaplains.

Field Artillery—Many changes have taken place in the field artillery units stationed at Fort Sill. The 1st FA Bn, 51st FA Bn, and 53d FA Bn have completed their move from Ft. Sill to Ft. Leonard Wood, Missouri. This leaves the following field artillery units stationed at the Field Artillery School: 18th FA Brigade (less 77th FA (less 1 bn)); 18th FA—A four battalion composite regiment consisting of two light truck drawn battalions, one 155 howitzer battalion and one horse-drawn 75-mm battalion; 70th, 71st and 83rd Field Artillery Battalions—All horse-drawn 75-mm battalions, and 8th and 14th Field Artillery Observation Battalions.

Arrangements have been made to organize three horse-drawn training batteries and two pack artillery training batteries in the Field Artillery Replacement Training Center at Ft. Sill.

War Department circular 110 which gives changes in AR 750-10 has been published. These changes are of particular interest to the Field Artillery. They now make it possible to fire field artillery weapons over troops when time fuzes are not used. The exact safety distances are laid down in this circular and vary according to caliber.

Proposed Field Manual 6-75, entitled "Service of the Piece 105-mm Howitzer M-2", with exception of section on care and maintenance has been distributed in mimeographed form to organizations who have received this weapon, or will receive it in the near future. Copies other than those already distributed are not available for issue. The section on care and maintenance is now being written at the Field Artillery School.

Military Engineers—Comdr. Lewis B. Combs, USN, assistant chief of the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks, will be guest speaker at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Washington Post of the Society of American Military Engineers at the Army and Navy Club at 12:30 p.m., 30 June. Lt. Col. George Mayo, CE, post president, will preside.

Navy Hydrographic Office—For the third time, the Navy Hydrographic Office has issued warnings that changes are being made from time to time in the channels leading to the Atlantic and Pacific entrances in the Panama Canal, and that it is unsafe for any vessel to enter the ports of Cristobal or Balboa without receiving instructions from the Navy vessel stationed outside each entrance. "All ships are required to stop near this naval vessel and may not proceed until the necessary instructions have been received," the warning said. "Ships disregarding this order do so at their own risk and may be liable for legal action for non-compliance." The nature of the channel changes was not made clear, but it is recalled that reports have been current for some time that approaches to the canal have been mined.

Army Medical Corps—Five Army General Hospitals have been designated as centers where military personnel will be transferred for treatment in deep or intermediate X-ray therapy. They are: Army and Navy General Hospital, Hot Springs, Ark.; Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, Colo.; Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, Calif.; Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C., and William Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso, Texas. The station hospital at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, also will receive cases for X-ray therapy from the San Antonio area. The X-ray units have been concentrated in the five centers because of the expense of the treatment and the necessity for specialists to conduct the administration.

A new mobile X-ray unit that can be packed or unpacked in 15 minutes and produce radiographs for study in about half an hour also is being delivered to Army hospitals to provide field doctors with complete fluoroscopic and X-ray facilities. The units are compact and detachable to permit hasty removal in time of danger. The new units were developed after a two-year study at the Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C., under the supervision of Maj. Alfred A. deLorimier, director of the Department of Roentgenology at the Army Medical School.

A new two-way radio equipped ambulance has recently been put into operation at Kelly Field, Texas, the Air Corps Advanced Flying School. The new ambulance was planned by Lt. Col. Read B. Harding, Senior Flight Surgeon at Station Hospital, Kelly Field, and Maj. John H. Bundy, Director of Flying, and will be used primarily to locate airplanes that have been forced down in wooded or isolated areas. The ambulance functions in cooperation with airplanes which locate the disabled plane and communicate with the ambulance, guiding it to the scene of the accident.

Infantry—Lt. Col. Herbert B. Laux, formerly provost marshal at Ft. Benning, Ga., has been made assistant executive officer of the Infantry School, Brig. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commandant of the school has announced. Colonel Laux' new duties will include public relations officer, intelligence officer, morale officer and recreation officer for the Infantry School.

Chemical Warfare Service—Four Military Police companies have been activated and assigned to Edgewood Arsenal, Md., and Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. The new units, known as the 221st, 222nd, 223rd and the 224th companies are composed of 99 enlisted men and four officers each. The 221st and 222nd companies are stationed at Edgewood Arsenal, while the 222nd and 224th companies are stationed at Aberdeen Proving Ground. Cadres for the new units were furnished by the two stations.

A special school for the training of policemen and firemen in combating incendiary and high explosive bombs and poison gas, has been established at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., by the Chemical Warfare Service and the Office of Civilian Defense. Municipal firemen and police of all cities within the Second Corps Area are eligible to attend the course.

Regular officers of the Chemical Warfare Service will conduct the classes. Studies will include all phases of combating bombs of every description as well as the effects of the various kinds of gas. It will include demonstrations of effects of the various types of bombs, the resultant fires and means of rendering them ineffective.

The school will begin the first two weeks' course on 30 June when approximately 50 firemen and police officers are scheduled to take up training. At the conclusion of the first course, others will be offered at two weeks' intervals until a total of 18 separate courses are held.

Firemen and policemen who have received the training will return to their respective communities to train members of their own departments according to the methods studied.

Cut Down the "SICK CALL" Roster!

Military and Naval commanders, keen on reducing their sick list personnel, are giving more and more attention to the contagion hazards of eating and drinking places adjacent to camp or station.

Common colds, influenza, trench mouth, typhoid and syphilis are among the scourges that are spread from mouth to mouth because of careless glass washing.

The use of individual Dixie Cups, that are used but once and thrown away, is a commonsense solution universally recognized.

MRS. Ross T. McIntire, wife of Admiral McIntire, Surgeon General of the Navy, and Mrs. W. E. Pattison French, widow of Major French, are off today for Los Angeles on the first lap of a trip that will take them to Honolulu, where they have leased a small apartment.

They will be accompanied by Admiral McIntire's niece, Miss Jean David, and with them as far as the west coast will be Mrs. McIntire's house guest, Mrs. Jan Noorduy from Curosol in the Netherlands West Indies. She will remain in this country, visiting Mrs. McIntire's mother, Mrs. Mary B. Palmer in Coronado.

Mrs. French has leased her Georgetown house to Mr. and Mrs. Rex Benson of the British Embassy personnel.

Mrs. McIntire and Mrs. French were the recipients of many farewell parties before leaving Washington. They were both guests of Mrs. Robert D. Cummin at luncheon Thursday, others in the company being Mrs. Harold Stark, wife of Admiral Stark, Mrs. Charles W. Kutz, wife of Brig. Gen. Kutz, Mrs. James Boyer, wife of Lt. Col. Boyer, Mrs. P. Lee Phillips, Mrs. John Talbot, Mrs. Carroll Greenough, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, and Mrs. Noorduy.

Mrs. French was a luncheon guest of Mrs. Emory S. Adams, wife of General Adams, Adjutant General, on Monday, and on Tuesday she motored to Annapolis to be the guest of Mrs. John A. Talbot and she was of the company entertained by Mrs. Kutz, wife of the Engineer Commissioner of the District at the Army and Navy Club in Farragut Square, Wednesday.

Mrs. Kutz had also as her guests her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles Randolph Kutz, wife of Captain Kutz of Ft. Benning and now away on maneuvers, and her daughter, Mrs. Lewis Tenney Ross, wife of Major Ross, of Washington.

Major and Mrs. Ross' daughter, Marlon, has just returned from the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, and had with her as her guest for a few days, her schoolmate, Miss Katherine Rutherford.

Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, USA-Ret., assistant commandant of the Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga., during its early years, paid a visit to that post 14 June. General Malone, who was commanding general of the Ninth Corps Area when he was retired several years ago, came east from his San Francisco home to visit his daughter and son-in-law, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Orryl S. Robles. Colonel Robles is at Ft. Benning taking a course at the Infantry School while Mrs. Robles is living at their home in Macon, Ga.

After visiting Colonel Robles and paying courtesy calls upon Maj. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall, commanding general of Ft. Benning, and Brig. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commandant of the Infantry School, General Malone planned to go on to Macon to see his daughter.

Col. and Mrs. Townsend Whelen have closed their Washington home and opened their farm at Woodstock, Vt.

Maj. Gen. William N. Porter, new Chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, and Mrs. Porter are being welcomed back to Washington and while trying to get the house they own in Thirty-Third Place in order, are being feted constantly by their many friends. A very big party was that given for them at the Officers' Club at the War College, when the officers of General Porter's department entertained for them. In the receiving line were Col. and Mrs. Arthur M. Heritage, and Col. Paul X. English.

Maj. Gen. Walter C. Baker, former Chief of Chemical Warfare, who has been recalled to active service, put in appearance with Mrs. Baker, though they had expected to leave Washington last week for their new home in New Hampshire, and they too were most cordially welcomed.

General and Mrs. Porter have a son and daughter, the former, Lt. "Bill" Porter, Jr., USN, now attached to the Tulsa, at Hong Kong and the latter, Mrs. L. M. Stevens, wife of Lt. Stevens at Coco Solo, Canal Zone. Lt. Porter and Lt. Stevens were roommates at the Naval Academy.

Miss Eugracia Freyer, daughter of Capt. Frank Freyer, USN, and Mrs. Freyer, has come on from her home in Denver and is visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Childress in Washington and expects soon to be joined by her former schoolmate, Mrs. Robert Brownlee, wife of Lt. Brownlee, USN, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Ennalls Waggaman, formerly of Washington, now residing at Santa Barbara, Calif.

Rear Adm. and Mrs. W. H. P. Blandy entertained at dinner Saturday evening at their home in Macomb Street, Washington, the ranking guests being the Under Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. James V. Forrestal, with the Commandant of the Navy Yard, Admiral George T. Pettengill, and Mrs. Pettengill, the Chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics, Rear Adm. John H. Towers, Mrs. Towers, and Comdr. and Mrs. Wallace Dunn making up the rest of the company.

Col. Oswald H. Saunders left Washington Sunday for his new post at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., where he will be director of the Command and General Staff School, and where Mrs. Saunders will shortly join him. Before his departure from Washington, he and Mrs. Saunders were feted at an informal party at the little club house at Arlington Cantonment, and sharing honors with them were the new chief of Infantry, Maj. Gen. Courtney B. Hodges, and Mrs. Hodges.

Brig. Gen. John Milliken, USA, and Mrs. Milliken came east from Texas to attend the graduation of their son, Jack, from the Military Academy and today they will attend his marriage to Miss Lucy Wilson Sperry of Pelham, N. Y. General Milliken has been transferred to Ft. Riley, and will leave shortly after the wedding.

Coming East with General and Mrs. Milliken were Mrs. T. K. Brown, wife of Colonel Brown of Ft. Bliss, and Miss Jaon Boye, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Fredric W. Boye, also of Ft. Bliss. Wedding and Engagements

THE marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Bibb, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Joseph R. Bibb, and Lt. Tate Young officiating.

As guests were assembling and as the wedding party approached the flower-decked altar, Mr. Curtis, tenor in "The Little Church Around the Corner" in New York, now stationed at Fort Bragg, sang "Oh Perfect Love" and "Ave Maria."

Escorted by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of white satin made en train and the bodice embellished with heirloom lace. Her illusion veil was held to her head by a halo of rose point lace and her white satin Prayer Book had as marker a shower of white orchids and valley lilies.

The bride's matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Warren T. Hannum, a bride of last autumn, and other attendants were the Misses Nancy J. Reager, and Cherie Eyster. Little Miss Betty Schindler, was her cousin's flower girl.

The best man was Lt. Warren T. Hannum, Jr., USA and the groomsmen were Lts. Chester Beaver, Jefferson Irwin, Robert Robinson and L. B. Ramsey. Lt. Chambliss Keith of Langley Field, Va., was a guest.

A reception followed the ceremony at the bride's home, and she cut the beautifully decorated wedding cake, wreathed with gardenias, with her husband's sword.

The bride attended the University of Hawaii. Lieutenant Siren was graduated from the Military Academy in the class of '38. He is now stationed at Ft. Bragg with the 39th Infantry, 9th Division.

Comdr. and Mrs. Robert Webster Cary have announced the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Craven Harris, to Ens. Curtis Francis Vossler, USN, on Sunday, 1 June 1941 at St. John's Church, Pensacola, Fla.

Lt. Thomas Courtenay O'Connell, USA was married to Miss Barbara Sears Henning, daughter of Arthur Sears Henning, head of the Chicago Tribune Bureau in Washington, and Mrs. Henning, 12 June in Walter Reed Memorial Chapel, Washington, D. C. The bridegroom is the son of Col. George A. O'Connell, USA, and Mrs. O'Connell, of Fort McClellan, Ala.

Officiating at the ceremony was Chaplain William J. Walsh while Chaplain William R. Arnold, chief of Army chaplains, assisted.

Escorted by her father to the altar in the chapel, the bride wore ivory satin made with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves, puffed at the shoulder, a fitted basque bodice and a full skirt extending into a four-yard train. Her three-tiered veil of Belgian lace was draped from a spray of orange blossoms and was arranged in a face veil, a fingertip veil and a third veil in the end of her train. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley centered with two white orchids.

Her sister, Mrs. N. Landon Head, wife of Captain Head, of Ft. Sill, Okla., was her matron of honor. Miss Aileen Gorgas Wrightson was the maid of honor.

Lt. Roderick Dhu O'Connor was the best man, and the ushers were Captain Head and Lts. John Norton, Walter Moore, Patrick Henry Tansey, Richard Polk and Perry P. Jones.

Expand Television

Planning for commercial television based upon new rules issued by the Federal Communications Commission on 3 May 1941, the National Broadcasting Company has filed applications with the FCC for commercial television stations to be operated in New York, Washington and Philadelphia.

The New York station, W2XBS, located at the Empire State Building, has been on the air experimentally since June 1936. Subject to approval of the FCC, it will be ready to operate on a commercial basis 1 July. The fifteen-hour program service specified by the Commission as a minimum weekly schedule will provide for broadcasts at periods between 2 and 11 p. m. for at least six days each week.

Dedicate Hoff Hall

Brig. Gen. Addison D. Davis, USA, Commandant of the Medical Field Service School at Carlisle Barracks, Carlisle, Pa. has just announced the final arrangements for the ceremony of laying the corner stone of Hoff Hall, a new academic building of the Medical Field Service School. This building is the newest unit of the extensive construction that has been going on at Carlisle Barracks. The building is nearly finished. The corner stone is to be at the entrance of the building and is one of the last bits of masonry to be placed in position. It is believed that by the time of the ceremony of dedication the building will be sufficiently near completion for visitors to see it and get an excellent idea of the arrangements for teaching and other purposes.

Hoff Hall receives its name in memory of a distinguished medical officer, Col. John Van Rensselaer Hoff, who was one of the earliest medical officers of our Army to realize the importance of training medical officers and enlisted men in drill, tactics, and other field duties. The name was borne by the former academic building at Carlisle Barracks which was pulled down last year to make way for the construction of quarters for officers. At present the Medical Field Service School is operating in the converted gymnasium which affords a temporary and only partially satisfactory quarters for this important school.

The new building is of most modern type and contains ample spaces for lecture rooms, amphitheater, offices and a large library. The building is of native lime stone, the stone for the construction having been actually quarried on the military reservation.

The ceremony will be an impressive one. The corner stone will be laid by Maj. Gen. Jas. C. Magee, Surgeon General USA, a native of Pennsylvania and a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College. By a coincidence, he was not only a class mate of the Commandant of the School, Brig. Gen. Addison D. Davis, both at the Jefferson Medical College and at the Army Medical School, but the two officers are exactly the same age—both having been born on 23 January 1883. The Surgeon General will address the audience immediately after laying the corner stone. All will then adjourn to the nearby parade grounds where the formal ceremonial parade will be held. Thereafter supper will be served to the guests on the grounds from the regular field kitchens, such as are used in the army.

Signal Corps Notes

Five hundred electrical engineers or electronic physicists, with radio experience, are being sought by the Signal Corps in connection with expansion of aircraft warning organizations.

Those qualified, who are between ages of 21 and 38 and unmarried, will be commissioned second lieutenants in the Signal Reserve, ordered to immediate active duty for a year, and after a period of training at the Signal Corps School, Ft. Monmouth, N. J., will be assigned to duty in the aircraft warning organizations.

Strength of the Signal Corps is now about 1,800 officers and 43,000 men, compared with a strength of about 300 officers and 5,500 men before the emergency. The total probably will go much higher. Maj. Gen. J. O. Mauborgne, Chief Signal Officer, indicated in a speech recently.

General Mauborgne was high in his praise of the progress made in training of selectees at the Signal Corps Replacement Training Center, Ft. Monmouth, following his return to Washington 16 June from a weekend inspection of the center. "The center is beautifully organized," he said, pointing out that men of the highest caliber are in training.

While at Monmouth, General Mauborgne witnessed a review of 8,000 troops—the largest review ever to be held at the Signal Corps School.

The Army's first pigeon unit was activated this month at Camp Claiborne, La., with a cadre of officers and men who had been engaged in pigeon breeding research at the Signal Corps School.

Commander of the new unit, the 280th Signal Pigeon Company, is Capt. John B. Boltz. Other officers ordered to the company are 1st Lts. David C. Buscall, Jr., Paul M. Lawrence and Roger A. Cook, and 2nd Lt. Herschel H. Chenoweth. Three other officers will be assigned to the company later. The unit will have an ultimate strength of 8 officers and 117 men.

Rep. Maas to Active Duty

Representative Melvin J. Maas, Minn., ranking Republican member of the House Naval Affairs Committee and a colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve, has been ordered to active duty for six weeks beginning 1 July. Colonel Maas will go to Pearl Harbor, T. H., and report to the commander of the battle fleet. He will join the Second Marine Corps Air Wing and will be second in command to Brig. Gen. Ross Rowell.

OBITUARIES

The War Department received notification of the death, Tuesday, of Maj. Gen. Ernest Hinds, USA-Ret., at San Antonio, Tex.

General Hinds, who served as The Chief of Artillery of the American Expeditionary Forces during the World War, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Minnie H. Miller Hinds; by a daughter, Mrs. F. T. Cruse, the wife of Col. Cruse; and by a son, Maj. John H. Hinds, of the General Staff Corps. Both Colonel Cruse and Major Hinds are Field Artillery Officers.

General Hinds was born at Red Hill, Alabama, on 18 Aug. 1864, a descendant of English people who came to this country before the Revolutionary War. He entered the United States Military Academy in 1883 to begin a military career of forty-five years of distinguished service. He was graduated number eight in his class, assigned to the Artillery, was promoted to all grades, including major general, and at the time of his retirement in 1928 was eligible for promotion to lieutenant general under legislation then pending which subsequently was adopted.

General Hinds began a distinguished career with honor graduation from Artillery Schools at Ft. Monroe, Va., in April 1898. Three months later, after marching all night, he took over a wounded captain's battery at the battle of Santiago, Cuba, and was cited and recommended for brevet major for his gallantry. He again distinguished himself in the capture of Manila and in the Philippine Insurrection. General Hinds was a member of the board for preparation of regulations for modern field artillery technique, and was an early member of the Field Artillery Board. For three years prior to the World War he was Chief of Staff of the Philippine Department, and during the World War was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal as Chief of Artillery of the I Army Corps, as commanding general of Army Artillery of the first American Army, and as General Pershing's Chief of Artillery of the American Expeditionary Forces. He also was awarded a number of foreign decorations for gallantry and for service.

Funeral services for Brig. Gen. Edmund L. Gruber, USA, who died on 30 May 1941, at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., were held at 11:00 A. M., Monday 16 June. Interment was in the Eastern Section of Arlington National Cemetery with Chaplain Ivan L. Bennett officiating.

General Gruber was Commandant of the Command and General Staff School at Ft. Leavenworth at the time of his death. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elsie Taylor Gruber, 508 So. Broadway St., Ft. Leavenworth, Kans.

FINANCE

Financial Digest

The immensity of the defense effort and its effect on private industry and the living standards of the people, are appreciated by the Industrialists patriotically serving in Washington, and are beginning to be appreciated by their fellows throughout the country. Officials of the Defense Contracts Service are suggesting that the country may have to spend $100 billions in order to provide the weapons with which to defeat Germany. Under Secretary of War Patterson, appearing before the Senate Military Committee, persuasively argued in behalf of the passage of the property seizures bill, a measure which, to be modified so as to apply only to the period of the Emergency, would enable the Government to take over plants and tools when and where needed for defense. Because the war is apt to be a long one, and conditions disturbed even when peace comes, Secretaries Stimson and Knox have strongly pressed the enactment of the agreement with Canada for the construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project. Secretary Ickes as Oil Dictator has made arrangements with California Oil Companies for the assignment of some of their tankers to the Gulf-East Coast Service, and from the Railroads is getting some 19,000 tank cars, to be used in preventing a serious oil shortage in the East which is imminent. Delays in aluminum production are being attributed to "recalcitrance" on the part of the Aluminum Company of America, which, as a matter of fact, has been ahead of the government in foresighted planning, and which has been handicapped in its activities by a charge of monopoly it is defending in the Courts. In order to increase their defense output, motor car manufacturers are patriotically responding to the request of the War Department to cut their output of 1942 models. Already they had agreed to do so by 20 per cent, and now they are arranging to make greater curtailments. The OPM has asked thirteen steel producers to reduce their delivery of sheet and strip steel to auto manufacturers and apply the capacity thus released to the production of materials for ships, railway cars, etc. Steel production for May reached 7,101,750 tons, bringing the total for the five months of the year to a record 35,057,783 tons. This is estimated to be 43 per cent more than was produced for the corresponding period of a year ago. Of importance to the Service is the tentative decision of the House Ways and Means Committee to more than double the bill of every tax payer to whom the surtax schedule will apply.

The Labor situation continues to concern Washington. The President is said to be determined to support Union efforts to eliminate Reds from Organized Labor. His attitude was the subject of a bitter blast from Philip Murray, President of the CIO, the same Murray who had criticized radicals in the Northwest lumber strike and in the Inglewood plant of the North American Aviation Company. In Murray's defense, it is pointed out that a split over the Reds in California Aviation plants might enable the AFL to get control of important factories. It is realized that Army seizure of the North American plant by no means settles the labor problem. Approved as the action has been by public opinion throughout the country, it is recognized that its effect is immediate only, that is in the reopening of the plant. Basic questions remain to be settled, and if Labor at Inglewood should benefit from the Army seizure, more strikes will be precipitated to induce Army action as a preliminary to gains. If the Administration can avoid it, more plant seizures on account of strikes will not occur, but it is declared the President is fixed in his purpose to prevent interference with production, and should Labor refuse to cooperate he will move to require it. Elimination of Reds from Union control will, it is believed, make drastic measures unnecessary, and, therefore, the drive in progress against them.

Nat. Guard's Federal Service

President Roosevelt stated at a press conference this week that he has asked Secretary of War Stimson to make a report on the desirability of holding the National Guard in Federal service after its year of training has been completed. It has been frequently stated that some decision on this matter will be made by July.

In the course of the hearings on the Army Appropriation bill witnesses said that plans have been based and the budget compiled on the basis of the Guard returning home at the end of a year.

A press release concerning infantry organization this week stated:

"By maintaining the square divisions, men of the various National Guard units will be enabled to return to their home stations at the conclusion of the year's training. State and local organizations thus will not be completely disrupted as would have been the case if the square divisions had been reorganized as triangular divisions."

Perfects Robot Control Invention

After 17 years of continuous research, Pvt. Joseph R. Crowden, AC, Scott Field, Ill., has perfected a robot control invention which has gained approval of the War Department and is being considered for future use. Pvt. Crowden's contribution to radio mechanics consists of an improvement over the old type radio remote relay used in connection with robot control of airplanes.

MERCHANT MARINE

Merchant Marine

Employment of maritime personnel already greatly dislocated by war conditions was further hit this week by decision of the Navy to call in all members of the Merchant Marine Naval Reserve and by replacement of the civilian crews of Army transports with Navy and Coast Guard personnel.

Announcing that Merchant Marine Reserve officers would be called to active duty without their consent and that those now on duty would be retained, the Navy said that "it is intended to conflict with the functions of the Merchant Marine to the minimum extent consistent with the urgent needs of the Navy."

All components of the Naval Reserve may now be ordered to duty involuntarily.

Merchant Marine Reservists are being used largely to man transports and other auxiliaries. It was announced this week that the master of the USS West Point (ex-SS America), Giles Stedman, will remain aboard that vessel as executive officer. Stedman is a commander in the Naval Reserve. Harry W. Moore, master of the USS Wakefield (ex-SS Manhattan), will remain as navigator of that vessel. Moore is a lieutenant commander, USNR. Harry Manning, master of the USS Mt. Vernon (ex-SS Washington), will remain as navigator of that vessel. Manning is also a lieutenant commander, USNR.

Capt. Donald B. Beary, USN, has been ordered from the Naval Academy to command the USS Mt. Vernon, and Capt. F. H. Kelley, USN, has been ordered from Marquette University to command the USS West Point. The USS Wakefield and three of the other 21 ships recently acquired by the Navy are being manned by Coast Guard personnel.

Master Ship Agreements

In an effort to end the shipbuilders' strike in the San Francisco Bay area the National Defense Mediation Board this week recommended that Bethlehem Steel Co. sign the Pacific Coast Master Agreement. This agreement has been signed by every other shipyard on the Pacific Coast. It is believed that signing of the agreement will result in return of striking machinists to their jobs.

Another step to stabilize employment and production in the shipbuilding industry was taken this week with submission to managements of 55 Atlantic Coast shipyards of proposed zone standards. The standards would be in effect for two years and would apply to the entire coast shipbuilding industry.

Foreign Ships

Foreign tonnage lying idle in American ports is being taken over by the Maritime Commission as rapidly as arrangements can be completed. This week six Danish ships and the Italian freighter Clara were formally acquired. The Clara will go from Savannah to Newport News for final overhaul before being placed in service.

Other ships of the 84 requisitioned by the government will be taken over from day to day as arrangements for their operation are completed.

Women's Army & Navy League

After months of careful planning and hard work, the members of the Woman's Army-Navy League are ready to show to the people of Washington the result of their efforts to provide comfort and recreation for the enlisted men of the services.

On Wednesday, 25 June, from 4 to 7, a house-warming tea will be held at the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club at 1015 L St. The guests will be shown the new dormitory and showers, recreation and dance hall, and the garden donated by the Republican women of the Senate. In the main building with its new coats of paint and artistic decoration and furniture will be exhibited the cauteen, the gift of the Woman's National Democratic Club.

These contributions and the hope of future help from the U. S. O. in maintaining and running the club have encouraged the women of the league in this new venture which has more than doubled the facilities of the club but has added greatly to the expense of running it.

There will be no admission charge at the tea but membership blanks will be available and for $1 any woman of the services or from civilian circles can feel that she has done her bit to carry on a work well done.

Mrs. Julian L. Schley, president of the club, will receive the guests and will be generally assisted throughout the afternoon by the other officers and members of the executive committee who are: vice presidents, Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, Mrs. George C. Marshall, Mrs. Royal Ingersoll and Mrs. Seth Williams. Mrs. Robert L. Mitten is the secretary, Mrs. Harold W. Jones assistant secretary, Mrs. Rex Rhoades is treasurer and Mrs. Oliver Spaulding assistant treasurer. The executive board members are Mrs. Walter C. Baker, Mrs. William Bryden, Mrs. John Herr, Mrs. Walter B. Woodson, Mrs. Felix Gygax, Mrs. Emory S. Adams, Mrs. Thomas Robins, Mrs. Charles Sanderson, Mrs. H. Schmidt and Mrs. Luther Sheldon, Jr.

Coordination of Air Traffic

Appointment of a coordinator of air traffic to solve the rapidly increasing problem of congestion of military and civil aircraft is expected to be made by the President in the near future. It was reported this week that an executive order creating the office already has been prepared and its announcement is expected to be accompanied by a Presidential proclamation assuming jurisdiction over all navigable air space above the continental United States and its possessions, and possibly above a certain radius around the off-shore naval and air bases leased by this country and now under Federal control.

Proposals for such an office were presented to the President recently by Col. Robert Olds, AC, and others, and a tentative plan for the new office and its duties was worked out by an inter-departmental committee representing the Army, Navy, Civil Aeronautics Administration, Civil Aeronautics Board, and a special House committee investigating aviation accidents.

Colonel McCoach Honored

Col. David McCoach, Jr., CE, retiring Engineer Commissioner of the District of Columbia, was the guest of honor at a testimonial dinner Thursday evening tendered him by civic leaders of Washington.

Selective Service Deferment

The House Military Affairs Committee this week reported the bill, S. 1524, authorizing the deferment from Selective Training and Service of men over 28 years old. The House Committee amended the bill to make the deferment mandatory instead of discretionary.

As reported by the committee the bill also authorizes the President to order any plant or industry engaged in defense contracts to resume work in case of a stoppage and authorizes him to enforce such order and afford protection to all persons engaged in the operation of the plant or industry. The bill was further amended to make it unlawful to prevent or attempt to prevent any person from accepting or continuing in employment at any defense plant, but specifically does not limit the right to engage in peaceful picketing.

Retired Navy Advancement

Senator David I. Walsh, Mass., chairman of the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs, is the author of a bill, S. 1630, providing for the advancement on the retired list of line officers of the Navy and Marine Corps who have been commended for performance of combat duty. The measure provides that such officers who were retired before 23 June 1938 without having been advanced on the retired list under any other Act shall be advanced one grade on the retired list with 75 per cent of the active duty pay of the grade held at the time of retirement.

Army Selection Promotions

All of the staff and special board reports on the selection of both promotion list and non-promotion list officers for advancement to the grade of colonel are now before General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, and it is understood that announcement of the first promotions under the new policy will be made next week.

Army Post Exchanges

Study of the recommendations of the special board on Army Post Exchanges has been completed and it is understood that final approval will be given next week to an entirely new set-up.
